Lad Killed, Several Hurt In Road Mishaps

Local 6-Year-Old Fatally Injured, Struck By Truck

Holiday Highway Traffic Heavy;
Mayor Levies $365 In Fines

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon for a 6-year-old Circleville boy, victim of a traffic accident Saturday.

The accident occurred when Jack David Conley, son of Howard W. and Dorothy Chenoweth Conley of 337 East High street, ran from behind parked cars at the corner of East Main and Washington streets into the path of a semi-trailer outfit.

The truck was driven by Lloyd Ferguson, 37, of Circleville Route 3, and was owned by George Van Camp of North Court street.

Conley was taken first to Berger hospital and later transferred to White Cross hospital in

22 Killed In State

Traffic Mishaps
Take 12 Lives

Little Jack Conley, six-year-old Circleville boy killed here Saturday afternoon, was one of 22 persons in Ohio who died in accidents over the long Memorial Day weekend. Of the 22, a dozen were killed in traffic, four by drowning, four by fire and two by hanging.

Mrs. Matelia Miller, 64, of Cheviot died Monday in Mariemont hospital after the auto driven by her husband crashed into a stump in Warren County, and then was hit by another car.

Raymond Herman, 22, of White Oak in suburban Cincinnati was fatally injured when his motorcycle crashed head-on into an auto.

Three-year-old William Jones, drowned Monday while on a picnic with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Jones Jr., of Deer Park in outer Cincinnati.

THE LITTLE body was found in the muddy waters of a small creek about 250 feet away from the picnic site in California Nature Preserve near Coney Island.

Five-year-old Earl Terrance Kraft slid off a steep bank on the Scioto river near Delaware and drowned Memorial Day. Terry and his family were picnicking near the Girls Industrial School and the boy wandered away from the gathering.

A 25-year-old Cincinnati mechanic was drowned Saturday trying to rescue a child who fell from a rowboat in Ohio Brush creek in Adams County.

The state highway patrol said the body of Leroy Edward Puenfield was found an hour and a half after he dived into the water in an effort to rescue his son, Robert, 3.

The child was rescued by Jesse White Jr., 22, of Manchester, who grabbed Robert as his father became exhausted.

Cecil Hubbard, 53, of Columbus, was drowned Sunday night when he fell from a boat in Buckeye Lake after suffering a heart attack.

DWIGHT A. WARNER, 21, of Greenville, was killed when (Continued on Page Two)

Wheat Market Feels Decline

Cash wheat premiums dropped ten cents a bushel in Kansas City Monday and immediately Circleville grain men absorbed half the drop. Wheat is selling at $1.95 in Kansas City and an even $2 in Circleville compared to $2.05 before the drop.

Kansas City officials said the decline, one of the biggest carlot market slumps in history, was due to "an adjustment to the new crop prices."

The downward revision of premiums to a new crop basis has been 24 cents in the last three trading sessions.

THE LAD'S DEATH brought to nine the number of persons killed in traffic accidents in Pickaway County so far this year. Last year, 23 were killed. As of Memorial Day last year, the county toll had reached 10.

The Conley accident was the most serious recorded in Pickaway County over the long Memorial Day weekend although traffic on state and federal highways here was unusually heavy.

The Conley boy is survived by his parents, a sister, Sally, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Chenoweth of East High street and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Conley of Pontious Lane. Burial was in Forest cemetery.

Earlier Saturday morning a two-car collision resulted in injuries to Herman Walton, 19, of 335 West Ohio street.

when a car driven by John C. Haynes of 625 South Scioto street stopped to make a left turn from Court street onto Town street, according to police records. Walton's car collided almost head-on with the Haynes vehicle.

Walton was treated for face lacerations in Berger hospital.

U.S. Death Toll For Weekend Nears 400 Mark

CHICAGO, May 31—The U. S. death toll from violent accidents during the Memorial Day weekend mounted toward the 400 mark today.

Traffic fatalities alone accounted for more than half the total. Nearly 250 persons lost their lives on the nation's highways.

The National Safety Council had predicted that 215 persons would die in motor vehicle accidents during the three-day period.

The most prominent figure to die in an automobile accident was William A. Julian, treasurer of the United States. He was killed in a head-on collision near Rockville, Md.

The remaining deaths were caused by drowning and miscellaneous accidents, such as fires, shootings, hangings and suicides.

The outpouring of some 10 million motorists in the first long holiday of the year served to boost the toll on the highways.

California topped the list of states with 44 fatalities. Twenty-nine persons died in traffic accidents, seven drowned and eight succumbed to other causes.

Illinois followed with 33, Ohio had 22 and New York had 20. Other totals included Michigan 18, Pennsylvania 17, Iowa 15, Indiana 12 and Texas 11.

The heaviest single tolls reported were the deaths of seven persons in a two-car collision near Shalotte, N. C., and the drowning of six persons, including four children, when their boat overturned near Green Island, Ia.

New Plan Ready

WASHINGTON, May 31—A bill calling for direct government aid to expanded voluntary health plans will be introduced by nine Republicans today as a substitute for President Truman's compulsory health program.

NATIONALIST BREAK ASKED

Chinese Reds Making Bid For Official Recognition

SHANGHAI, May 31—The Chinese Communists made their first bid today for international recognition as the legitimate government of China.

The Peiping radio, considered the official voice of the Chinese regime, outlined the conditions under which diplomatic relations could be established.

The broadcast said the Communist government is willing to enter diplomatic relations with any foreign countries which break off relations with the Nationalists.

It said the Communists "desire to enter relations on the basis of equality, mutual benefit and mutual respect for each other's independence and integrity of territorial sovereignty."

THE PEIPING report stressed, however, that a first step towards such relations must be a clean break with the "Kuomintang reactionaries." It added:

"If foreign governments are willing to consider the establishment of diplomatic relations with us they must sever relations with the remnant of Kuomintang forces and withdraw their armed forces from China."

The broadcast did not elaborate on this last statement, but apparently it was a pointed reference to U. S. fleet and Marine units stationed principally at Tsingtao, north of Shanghai and still in Nationalist hands.

The broadcast probably alluded also to the British colony of

$100 Fine Given Cleveland In Hit-Skip Case

A 35-year-old Cleveland man received a fine of $100 and costs and a suspended 90-day sentence in jail in Pickaway County common pleas court Saturday.

He was Charles Brown who entered a plea of guilty to an accusation charging him with leaving the scene of an accident in which Lewis Griffey of Commercial Point was struck by an auto.

Griffey was struck by a south-bound car in South Bloomfield Thursday night, and bystanders followed a car which they identified as the Brown auto. Brown denied the allegations prior to his arraignment.

The Commercial Point man was rushed to a Columbus hospital following the mishap to be treated for deep lacerations of the side. He has been released to his home, according to hospital attaches, and his condition is reported good.

Dixie Tornado Kills Youth, 13

FOREST, Miss., May 31—Rescue workers cleared the debris today from nearby Pulaski in the wake of a tornado which killed one person and caused heavy damage.

Oscar Morler, 13, was killed when the twister destroyed the barn in which he was working last night. Several persons were injured.

In Jackson, considerable property damage was reported, but there were no injuries.

Hong Kong and the Portuguese colony of Macao nearby.

Meanwhile, from Canton, it was reported that the Soviet ambassador to China has left the temporary Nationalist capital for Moscow.

The envoy, N. V. Roschin, left Canton only one day after the Russian consulate in Shanghai was closed and a spokesman announced:

"A new regime which our government does not officially recognize has come to Shanghai; we are not remaining open."

B-36 Probe Is Ordered

'Ugly Rumors'
To Be Aired

WASHINGTON, May 31—A congressional investigation was ordered today into the B-36 Superbomber program and alleged irregularities in aircraft procurement involving prominent men.

The House Armed Services Committee by unanimous vote directed its chairman, Rep. Vinson, (D) Ga., to ask the House for power to subpoena witnesses and for $50,000 in funds to pay for the investigation.

The action was taken with the approval of both Democratic and Republican members and with the agreement of Rep. Van Zandt, (R) Pa. Van Zandt said that in view of the committee's action he would drop his request for an investigation by a special House committee.

Van Zandt declared in a House speech last week that an investigation should be made of "ugly rumors" revolving around Defense Secretary Johnson, Air Force Secretary Symington and Floyd Odlum, who controls Consolidated Vultee Corp., manufacturer of the six-engined B-36.

THE COMMITTEE decided to go into all phases of the controversy, to probe all "rumors and innuendos" to find out what was behind them, and to delve into anything else involving procurement of airplanes and the Air

Final Rites Set For W. A. Julian

WASHINGTON, May 31—Final rites will be held here tomorrow for W. A. Julian, 78, treasurer of the United States.

Julian, who was the Ohio delegation's favorite-son candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1948, was killed instantly Sunday in an auto crash near Bethesda, Md.

WEST HOPES TO AVOID NEW BIG 4 DEADLOCK

Poll Law Change Eyed By Assembly

5-Day Work Week
Being Planned

COLUMBUS, May 31—Their last long weekend over, Ohio's lawmakers swing into what they fondly hope is the home stretch tonight when they begin their 22nd week.

Topmost on the evening's agenda is the house vote on a senate-approved measure to make major changes in Ohio's election laws.

Because of Memorial Day—which gave the solons a Thursday noon-until-Tuesday-night weekend—the week begins a day later than usual. However, the assembly will make up the day by working Friday for the first time this year.

From here on out until final adjournment—which is hoped for in about a month—both house and senate leaders have promised to work a five instead of a four-day week.

THE ELECTION law bill is based on recommendations of both Gov. Frank Lausche and of Secretary of State Charles F. Sweeney, chief election officer of the state.

The major change will be to restore the validity of a ballot if the voter's intention is unmistakably clear. Two years ago, the legislature voided all ballots not marked with an "X" in the proper square provided for it.

Lausche, in his inaugural address, told the legislature that "an estimated 100,000 voters in Ohio were to all practical purposes disenfranchised when, due to meaningless technicalities, their ballots were invalidated."

Another change would restore the provision that petitions for state and county central committee candidates contain not less than five nor more than 25 signatures. The present law, requiring exactly five valid signatures, has also resulted in considerable confusion, with resultant disqualifications of candidates, particularly in Franklin and Montgomery Counties.

IT WAS THIS same law that ruled out a mayor's primary (Continued on Page Two)

Anti-Communist Talk Is Heard At Rites Here

Circleville's Memorial Day ceremonies in Forest cemetery were highlighted by a speech against Communism by a Capital university professor.

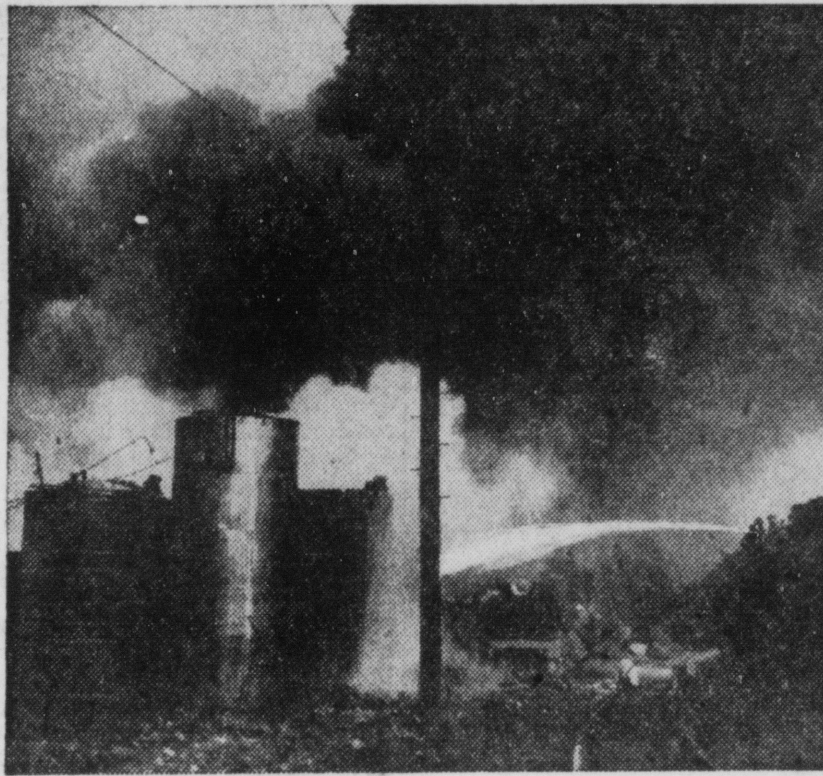

He was Prof. Homer R. Cotterman, who outlined six ways in which Communism would be detrimental to America and its citizens.

In addition to his warning against Communism, Cotterman prayed for peace and paid special tribute to the Grand Army of the Republic, which recently retired as an active group.

E. C. Ebert, commander of the Circleville American Legion and chairman of the services, said Monday's observance was the largest held here for many years.

The parade included both Circleville and Williamsport bands, along with marching veterans, service women's groups and Girl and Boy Scouts.

Meanwhile services were conducted in seven other Pickaway County communities. They were Darbyville, Harrison Township, Reber Hill cemetery, New Holland, Williamsport, Tarlton and Meade, Kingston, bordering the county, also held services in the village cemetery.

LILIENTHAL UNDER FIRE

Congress Books Probe Of Entire Atom Program

WASHINGTON, May 31—The congressional atomic committee today ordered public hearings beginning tomorrow on "incalculable mismanagement" charges against the Atomic Energy Commission Chairman, David E. Lilienthal.

Sen. McMahon, (D) Conn. committee chairman, estimated that hearings based on accusations against Lilienthal by Sen. Hickenlooper, (R) Iowa, will last "about three weeks."

Lilienthal will be called as the first witness and will be confronted with a "bill of particulars" by Hickenlooper.

McMahon said Hickenlooper will lead off the questioning by laying his charges before Lilienthal and calling for replies.

Hickenlooper also has charged that "numerous persons of strong Communist leanings" have found jobs in the atomic program.

McMAHON SAID Hickenlooper told the committee today that he did not have more detailed evidence—which the committee had expected—ready for presentation today.

The chairman said Hickenlooper indicated that his questioning of Lilienthal will take the remainder of this week.

McMahon predicted that the inquiry then will spread out to cover a wide range of atomic phases.

At the same time, McMahon said the committee is determined to get legislation to permanently ban Communists or Communist sympathizers from the atomic scholarship program.

The stage for today's meeting was set by the weekend flareup of a bitter personal feud between Lilienthal and Hickenlooper.

Lilienthal directed an attack on the senator who led the fight for the AEC chairman's confirmation two years ago, but now demands his resignation.

The atomic chief said that Hickenlooper is guilty of an attempt to undermine public confidence in the atomic energy program.

Lilienthal, who said he was "damn mad," branded the senator's charges as "vague" statements designed to "arouse fear and distrust" in the nation. He insisted on a showdown and described the present dispute as more than a "scuffling match."

Hickenlooper replied briefly to Lilienthal's blast. He said that "evidence" will be produced "in due time" and the verdict will rest with the public and the joint congressional atomic committee.

Lancaster Cop In More Trouble LANCASTER, May 31—Lancaster Police Chief Sam H. Hutsler had a criminal libel charge leveled at him today by the attorney for the three police officers accusing him of being involved in an extortion plot.

The chief pleaded innocent on arraignment and was bound over to the Fairfield County grand jury under $500 bond.

Attorney Russell Cunningham filed the charge after Hutsler claimed the lawyer had once been indicted on a criminal charge.

Cunningham is attorney for two officers and a motorcycle patrolman who were suspended by the chief and who filed charges against him saying he was involved in a "kickback" scheme.

Vishinsky Rejects
Germany Peace Plan

PARIS, May 31—The West conferred again today to plan united strategy in the face of Soviet rejection of the West's plan for a unified Germany.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin met in the French foreign office for nearly two hours with French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman.

The Western ministers refused comment when they left the conference room.

Reports circulating in Western delegation circles said that Acheson may return home the latter part of next week if the deadlock remains unbroken over the basic issues.

IT WAS INDICATED the American secretary of state may turn over to U. S. Ambassador-at-Large Philip Jessup the task of reaching a limited accord on the Berlin and trade exchange problems.

American delegation sources said no decision on the matter has yet been reached but they declared the possibility should not be discounted.

American sources said they are trying to work out a solution of the Berlin dispute and East-West trade, since they now believe there is little hope of getting any plan for German unity at this meeting.

One source said Britain, France and the United States will seek a written agreement with the Russians for free access to Berlin along all major highways and railways when the conference takes up the Berlin problem.

The West reportedly will use as a bargaining point a threat to re-impose the economic counterblockade against the Soviet zone.

Russia is believed to be so eager to get industrial products from Western Germany, especially the Ruhr, that it may accept the West's terms on Berlin.

City Council Readies Meet

The city fathers will meet in special session Tuesday night to consider four names to be submitted by Mayor Thurman I. Miller for a board of control for Berger hospital.

The board of control will consist of four members from Circleville and four from Pickaway County. The mayor will serve as chairman. A contract recently agreed to by city council and county commissioners authorizes formation of the city-county joint board.

Selection of county members by county commissioners is expected to take place during a meeting next week.

2 Persons File For Positions

Two persons have filed for election in November with the Pickaway County board of elections.

First of the pair was Mrs. Lilian W. Moore, seeking reelection as member of Circleville board of education. Other petition filed was by Ansel Whiteside, seeking reelection as trustee of Deer Creek Township.

Mrs. Walter Stout, board of elections clerk, said that Dan Hinton also has taken out a petition for the post of Pickaway Township trustee.

Judge Sought To Settle Ford Speedup Dispute

DETROIT, May 31—A second group of strike-idled Ford workers returned to their jobs today and company and UAW-CIO officials reopened the task of selecting an arbitrator for their speedup dispute.

Several thousand maintenance and setup men returned to the Rouge and Lincoln-Mercury plants yesterday to prepare the buildings for full production.

The strike began May 5 and cost the workers an estimated $1 million a day. It was the longest strike in the history of the company, idling the workers for 25 days, the first workers returning yesterday.

The company lost an estimated $75 million in profits and production estimated at 80 thousand cars and trucks.

The West reportedly will use as a bargaining point a threat to re-impose the economic counterblockade against the Soviet zone.

Russia is believed to be so eager to get industrial products from Western Germany, especially the Ruhr, that it may accept the West's terms on Berlin.

Although the West still hopes for limited accord on Berlin and East-West trade, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky's announcement (Continued on Page Two)

City Council Readies Meet

The city fathers will meet in special session Tuesday night to consider four names to be submitted by Mayor Thurman I. Miller for a board of control for Berger hospital.

The board of control will consist of four members from Circleville and four from Pickaway County. The mayor will serve as chairman. A contract recently agreed to by city council and county commissioners authorizes formation of the city-county joint board.

Selection of county members by county commissioners is expected to take place during a meeting next week.

2 Persons Filed For Positions

Two persons have filed for election in November with the Pickaway County board of elections.

First of the pair was Mrs. Lilian W. Moore, seeking reelection as member of Circleville board of education. Other petition filed was by Ansel Whitesed, seeking reelection as trustee of Deer-creek Township.

Mrs. Walter Stout, board of elections clerk, said that Dan Hinton also has taken out a petition for the post of Pickaway Township trustee.

gry rejection of the Western plan for unity admittedly has dashed hopes for any over-all agreement.

FOR THE first time since the present conference convened a week ago Monday, Vishinsky returned to something approaching his vituperative recriminations of previous international meetings.

Western observers fear this may be a sign that the conference will fall into the old pattern of Soviet intransigence and unyielding stubbornness.

In language reminiscent of the invective for which he was long famed, Vishinsky at one point denounced the British and Americans for what he called "monopolistic and capitalistic penetration into the western zones and in the Ruhr industrial basin."

Bevin replied for the West with the tart comment: "The Soviet delegation must be lacking in a sense of humor if it sees a conspiracy between Capitalistic America and Socialistic Britain to gobble up industries in the Ruhr."

Vishinsky also accused the West of trying "a policy of dictation towards the Soviet Union which always fails."

Bevin again answered for his colleagues when he said patiently that the West is not trying to dictate, adding:

"But we want to avoid a revival of militarism or transformation of Germany into a police state."

ACHESON SAID that Vishinsky's reasons for rejecting the Western proposal left him "baffled."

The Western plan calls for an end to Russian reparations out of current production and a limited, supervisory four-power control of Germany with decisions by majority vote, as against the unanimous or veto rule which Russia favors.

Vishinsky's proposal had been for a return to the rigid four-power control over Germany based on the Potsdam agreement.

Andrews Tipped For K Of P Post

Cecil Andrews has been nominated as the lone candidate for chancellor commander of Circleville Knights of Pythias lodge.

Andrews was nominated for the post at the Monday meeting in Pythian Castle in which a class of candidates were conferred with the rank of esquire.

Other nominations for the top Pythian posts were Irvin Reid as vice-chancellor; Clarence Radcliffe as master-at-arms; Harry Stivers as prelate; Azel Laughlin and Ronald Nau as inner guard; H. H. Groce and Laughlin as outer guard; and Hylas Valentine and Allen Strawser as master of work.

Second nominations and elections are to be held at the next meeting.

Still another provision of the bill would be to prevent independent candidates for presidential electors, such as the Wallace candidates of last year, to win a place on the ballot.

The house also will vote on a bill by Rep. George Marshall (R-Franklin) to make ticket scalping a misdemeanor.

Meanwhile, the house finance committee will formally report back to the house the general appropriations bill.

The committee, which lopped only about $4 million from Governor Lauche's recommended $649 million budget, attempted to report the bill back last Thursday, but Mrs. Anna O'Neill (D-Summit), the committee chairman, withdrew the report for correction.

Since the lengthy bill must be reprinted, it can hardly be brought to a vote before next Tuesday. Because it will not be up this week, Speaker John Cantwell said he would probably go to Washington to the meeting of the National Safety Congress.

Replacing Cantwell, who was appointed a delegate by President Truman, on the speaker's rostrum will be Majority Leader A. G. Lancione (D-Belmont).

The finance committee, which has one major headache out of its way, begins a new test this week—consideration of the $60 million additions and betterments bill. The two big money bills, and also the sundry claims bill which has not yet been introduced, must clear both houses and be sent to the governor before the lawmakers can call it a year.

DEATHS

and Funerals

PVT. OLEN MINSHALL

Body of Pvt. Olen Minshall, foster son of Mrs. Mary Connor of 234 North Court street, will arrive in Circleville for burial Friday.

Pvt. Minshall was born in Marion May 2, 1920, son of Fredland and Maude Saxton Minshall, both of whom are deceased.

He enlisted into the U. S. Army at Ft. Hayes, Columbus, Dec. 21, 1942, and was fatally wounded over Belgium on Jan. 7, 1945. He died in a Belgian hospital on Jan. 9, 1945.

Surviving him is a brother, Harry; five sisters, Florence, Lillian, Alma, Opal and Roselle; an aunt, Mrs. Florence Hemminger of Adelphi; and two uncles, Theodore Minshall of Hillsboro and C. E. Minshall of Kingston.

Funeral services are to be held in Defenbaugh Funeral Home at 3 p. m. Saturday with the Rev. L. C. McCandlish of Middlepoint officiating. Military services and burial will be in Green Summit cemetery, Adelphi, by Circleville Veterans of Foreign Wars. Friends may register in the funeral home Friday.

MRS. HOWARD CHAMBERS

Mrs. Nettie Ellen Chambers, 66, of near Tarlton, died in her home Saturday following a short illness.

Mrs. Chambers is survived by her husband, Howard Chambers; a son, Leewood, at home; and her mother, Mrs. Mary McDonald of Columbus.

Funeral services will be held in Bethany Methodist church at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday with the Rev. Joseph Bretz officiating. Burial will be in the churchyard cemetery nearby.

Friends may call in Defenbaugh Funeral Home in Circleville.

Canadians Held In Burglary Of Nearby Home

Two Canadians, said to be responsible for burglaries in Pickaway and Hancock Counties, were captured Saturday by State Highway Patrol in Findlay, according to Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

Gordon Robert Cavanaugh, 19, and Aubrey Earl Babcock, 18, both of Toronto, Canada, have been turned over to Hancock County Sheriff Orla A. Cooper by the State Highway Patrol, Radcliff said.

He added that a .32 caliber revolver, two wrist watches, a flashlight and a fountain pen were found in the possession of the Canadians. He said they admitted stealing them from the home of J. L. Thornton of Circleville Route 1.

Thornton reported theft of the articles to the sheriff's department Thursday, and investigation by Sheriff's Deputy Vern Pontious revealed that entry into the house had been made through a kitchen window. The burglars apparently left by the front door, he reported.

Cavanaugh and Babcock are being held by Hancock County authorities in connection with burglaries there, Radcliff said.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolford Pollock of Circleville Route 3, stepped into the side of a car driven by Turney Eccard, 58, of Circleville Route 3. The accident occurred at the corner of North Court street and Rosewood avenue.

Pollock was taken to Berger hospital for treatment. He was released Monday, according to attendants there.

Melvin Kneec, 29, of near Williamsport, reportedly suffered back injuries when his horse-drawn mowing machine was struck on Route 22 near Williamsport.

Kneec, driving his team at a walk toward Williamsport near the T. D. VanCamp farm, was struck from the rear by a car driven by Alex Kervorkan of Cincinnati.

With the impact of the crash, Kneec was thrown from the seat of the mower and into the ditch. The frightened horses ran, but were stopped by a passing motorist.

Arrested at the scene by a state highway patrolman, Kervorkan was arraigned before Circleville Mayor Thurman I. Miller and fined $25 and costs for reckless operation.

Four persons were injured in a two-car collision on U. S. Route 23 early Saturday morning.

The accident occurred when a car driven by William Cook of Detroit collided with another auto driven by Ansel Roof of South Bloomfield.

INJURED In the Roof vehicle was Edith Roof, a passenger, who suffered possible fractures and concussion, according to State Highway Patrolman C. E. Wells. She was taken to St. Francis hospital in Columbus, where attendants reported her condition good Tuesday. Ansel Roof suffered lacerations.

Cook suffered chest injuries, while Lucy Taylor of Detroit, a passenger in his car, suffered lacerations of the right eye, the patrolman reported.

Traffic violators were fined a total of $365 by Mayor Miller over the holiday weekend.

Accused of drunken driving by police were William C. Wachtendorf, 38, and Walter Morris, Jr., 27, both of Columbus, and Millard C. Francis, 22, of Ashland, Ky. Each was fined $100 and costs.

Morris was arrested by Circleville police after he crashed into the northeast corner of Crites South Court street filling station while attempting to make a left turn. According to police records a soft drink cooler was knocked approximately 25 feet as a result of the crash. Paying fines of $10 each were Raymond Phillips, Richard O. Morris and Ohmer Gump, all of Columbus. They were accused by State Highway Patrol of passing in non-passing zones on U. S. Route 23.

John C. Haynes of Circleville was also fined $10 and costs. He was accused of operating a car on a temporary driver's permit without a licensed driver accompanying him.

shot in a Saturday night brawl. Stanley P. Chenuault Jr. was charged by two homicide squad detectives a short time after David Burge, 28, died in St. Francis hospital of an abdominal wound.

In fair condition were Mrs. Esther Kale, 26, and Mrs. Mary Gordon, 21.

In making his request for a formal investigation, Vinson told the group: "This investigation involves a number of big issues. It deals with the reputation of men great in America today. It deals with the reputation of the national military establishment in the eyes of the American people."

"So I feel that we must be absolutely certain that this investigation is completely thorough in order to ascertain all pertinent facts—to let the chips fall where they will. This will be no whitewash investigation."

The B-36 costs more than $4 million. The Air Force contends it is an intercontinental bomber, but the Navy maintains its jet interceptor can knock down the huge plane.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff is now considering a request by Vinson's group that the conflicting claims be settled by an actual test.

, Skinny!! Early Couple Days School Left

Circleville youngsters Tuesday began their last four fleeting days of school before Summer vacations.

High school boys and girls spent Tuesday in registration for subjects next year, along with the eighth graders who will be freshmen next Fall.

Wednesday's schedule calls for a full day of school, but it will be the last full day of this Spring. Thursday the youngsters are to attend morning classes only, while Friday's school will consist of about an hour as the boys and girls file in for their report cards.

Circleville teachers also have a busy schedule for Thursday and Friday, all teachers in the system to file final reports Thursday afternoon. A teacher's meeting is slated for Friday morning.

POLICE CHIEF William F. McCrady, eyeing the coming vacation period, warned Circleville motorists to be even more careful during the next three months. "Kids just don't realize danger," said the Chief. "They dart across streets without a second's warning. It's up to the motorist to watch out for the youngsters."

McCrady added that the police try to discourage ball games and other games in the streets, but that the youngsters pay little heed.

"Parents should begin a strict safety program in the home right now," he said.

Body of Pvt. Olen Minshall, foster son of Mrs. Mary Connor of 234 North Court street, will arrive in Circleville for burial Friday.

Pvt. Minshall was born in Marion May 2, 1920, son of Freeland and Maude Saxton Minshall, both of whom are deceased.

He enlisted into the U. S. Army at Ft. Hayes, Columbus, Dec. 21, 1942, and was fatally wounded over Belgium on Jan. 7, 1945. He died in a Belgian hospital on Jan. 9, 1945.

Surviving him is a brother, Harry; five sisters, Florence, Lillian, Alma, Opal and Roselle; an aunt, Mrs. Florence Hemminger of Adelphi; and two uncles, Theodore Minshall of Hillsboro and C. E. Minshall of Kingston.

Funeral services are to be held in Defenbaugh Funeral Home at 3 p. m. Saturday with the Rev. L. C. McClandish of Middlepoint officiating. Military services and burial will be in Green Summit cemetery, Adelphi, by Circleville Veterans of Foreign Wars. Friends may register in the funeral home Friday.

MRS. HOWARD CHAMBERS

Mrs. Nettie Ellen Chambers, 68, of near Tarlton, died in her home Saturday following a short illness.

Mrs. Chambers is survived by her husband, Howard Chambers; a son, Leewood, at home; and her mother, Mrs. Mary McDonald of Columbus.

Funeral services will be held in Bethany Methodist church at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday with the Rev. Joseph Bretz officiating. Burial will be in the churchyard cemetery nearby.

Friends may call in Defenbaugh Funeral Home in Circleville.

Canadians Held In Burglary Of Nearby Home

Two Canadians, said to be responsible for burglaries in Pickaway and Hancock Counties, were captured Saturday by State Highway Patrol in Findlay, according to Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

Gordon Robert Cavanaugh, 19, and Aubrey Earl Babcock, 18, both of Toronto, Canada, have been turned over to Hancock County Sheriff Orla A. Cooper by the State Highway Patrol, Radcliff said.

He added that a .32 caliber revolver, two wrist watches, a flashlight and a fountain pen were found in the possession of the Canadians. He said they admitted stealing them from the home of J. L. Thornton of Circleville Route 1.

Thornton reported theft of the articles to the sheriff's department Thursday, and investigation by Sheriff's Deputy Vern Pontious revealed that entry into the house had been made through a kitchen window. The burglars apparently left by the front door, he reported.

Cavanaugh and Babcock are being held by Hancock County authorities in connection with burglaries there, Radcliff said.

Lad Killed

Mr. and Mrs. Wolford Pollock of Circleville Route 3, stepped into the side of a car driven by Turner Eccard, 58, of Circleville Route 3. The accident occurred at the corner of North Court street and Rosewood avenue.

Pollock was taken to Berger hospital for treatment. He was released Monday, according to attendants there.

Melvin Kneese, 29, of near Williamsport, reportedly suffered back injuries when his horse-drawn mowing machine was struck on Route 22 near Williamsport.

Kneese, driving his team at a walk toward Williamsport near the T. D. VanCamp farm, was struck from the rear by a car driven by Alex Kervorkan of Cincinnati.

With the impact of the crash, Kneese was thrown from the seat of the mower and into the ditch. The frightened horses ran, but were stopped by a passing motorist.

Arrested at the scene by a state highway patrolman, Kervorkan was arraigned before Circleville Mayor Thurman I. Miller and fined $25 and costs for reckless operation.

Four persons were injured in a two-car collision on U. S. Route 23 early Saturday morning.

The accident occurred when a car driven by William Cook of Detroit collided with another auto driven by Ansel Roof of South Bloomfield.

INJURED IN the Roof vehicle was Edith Roof, a passenger, who suffered possible fractures and concussion, according to State Highway Patrolman C. E. Wells. She was taken to St. Francis hospital in Columbus, where attendants reported her condition good Tuesday. Ansel Roof suffered lacerations.

Cook suffered chest injuries, while Lucy Taylor of Detroit, a passenger in his car, suffered lacerations of the right eye, the patrolman reported.

Traffic violators were fined a total of $365 by Mayor Miller over the holiday weekend.

Accused of drunken driving by police were William C. Wachtendorf, 38, and Walter Morris, Jr., 27, both of Columbus, and Millard C. Francis, 22, of Ashland, Ky. Each was fined $100 and costs.

Morris was arrested by Circleville police after he crashed into the northeast corner of Crites South Court street filling station while attempting to make a left turn. According to police records a soft drink cooler was knocked approximately 25 feet as a result of the crash.

Paying fines of $10 each were Raymond Phillips, Richard O. Morris and Ohmer Gump, all of Columbus. They were accused by State Highway Patrol of passing in non-passing zones on U. S. Route 23.

John C. Haynes of Circleville was also fined $10 and costs. He was accused of operating a car on a temporary driver's permit without a licensed driver accompanying him.

shot in a Saturday night brawl. Stanley P. Chenaunt Jr. was charged by two homicide squad detectives a short time after David Burge, 28, died in St. Francis hospital of an abdominal wound.

In fair condition were Mrs. Esther Kale, 26, and Mrs. Mary Gordon, 21.

Judge Sought To Settle Ford Speedup Dispute

Rouge workers may not be back before next week.

A Ford official said all of the Ford workers throughout the country may not be back for at least two weeks.

Meanwhile, the strike negotiators have three days to select a single arbitrator. If no one is selected within three days, each side will name an arbitrator and these two will select the third member of the required three-man panel.

If no agreement is reached on the third man, then the post will go automatically to Dr. Harry Schulman, impartial umpire under the FORD-UAW-CIO contract.

B-36 Probe Is Ordered

Force's position in the national defense.

In making his request for a formal investigation, Vinson told the group:

"This investigation involves a number of big issues. It deals with the reputation of men great in America today. It deals with the reputation of the national military establishment in the eyes of the American people."

"So I feel that we must be absolutely certain that this investigation is completely thorough in order to ascertain all pertinent facts—to let the chips fall where they will. This will be no whitewash investigation."

The B-36 costs more than $4 million. The Air Force contends it is an intercontinental bomber, but the Navy maintains its jet interceptor can knock down the huge plane.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff is now considering a request by Vinson's group that the conflicting claims be settled by an actual test.

, Skinny!! My Couple Days School Left

Circleville youngsters Tuesday began their last four fleeting days of school before Summer vacations.

High school boys and girls spent Tuesday in registration for subjects next year, along with the eighth graders who will be freshmen next fall.

Wednesday's schedule calls for a full day of school, but it will be the last full day of this Spring. Thursday the youngsters are to attend morning classes only, while Friday's school will consist of about an hour as the boys and girls file in for their report cards.

Circleville teachers also have a busy schedule for Thursday and Friday, all teachers in the system to file final reports Thursday afternoon. A teacher's meeting is slated for Friday morning.

POLICE CHIEF William F. McCrady, eyeing the coming vacation period, warned Circleville motorists to be even more careful during the next three months.

"Kids just don't realize danger," said the Chief. "They dart across streets without a second's warning. It's up to the motorist to watch out for the youngsters."

McCrady added that the police try to discourage ball games and other games in the streets, but that the youngsters pay little heed.

"Parents should begin a strict safety program in the home right now," he said.

blind cord after he slipped off a chair.

Five-year-old Kathleen Lajcha also was hanged accidentally while playing in a tree late Saturday.

Scientist Believes He Has Found Lost People

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the first in a series of articles on life in the Americas 20,000 years ago. The author, Dr. Richard MacNeish, a leading archeologist, starts to trace man's development on the American continent.

By Dr. Richard S. MacNeish
(Written For INS)

The mercenary Spanish conquistadors, who came to the New World to pillage and loot, found a rich and lush civilization at their feet in Mexico.

But since that time, baffled archeologists and historians have sought in vain for more than 70 years to find what culture must have preceded the glittering Maya and Aztec civilizations.

True, a few earlier cultures had been found, but they always revealed a people well along the road to civilization, with a corn agriculture, well-made artistic pottery and clay figurines.

All these things indicated a well-organized social group with a complex religious and community life. But where were the tap roots of Western civilization, the early beginnings of these basic factors of modern life?

All investigators came up against this wall of mystery sooner or later.

This was strange, for archeologists have long suspected that Mexico was occupied by people some 10,000 to 20,000 years ago and logic backed them up.

Remains of man have been found along with animals now extinct—such as the mammoth, giant bison and giant sloth—in the sweeping great plains of the United States, among the Rockies and in great stretches of the Southwest.

In South America similar types of remains have been found, but not in Mexico. As early as 1878 a Frenchman, E. T. Hamy, puzzled by this odd lack of early remains in Mexico, sought fruitlessly for some evidence of early man there.

Other expeditions sponsored by such organizations as the Carnegie Institute, the United Fruit Corporation and the Viking Fund, Inc., similarly met with no success.

Up until last year, only a single skull had been unearthed that gave any indication of the possible existence of early man in Mexico.

Because this shroud of mystery surrounded the origins of the Mexican people, scientists as well as others began to speculate on the possibility that civilization came into Mexico from somewhere else.

South America, Macedonia, Egypt, the Southwest and even the supposedly lost continents of Mu and Atlantis, buried in the depths of the Pacific and the Atlantic, all were suggested as the source of life.

But archeologists were convinced all these guesses were wrong. Most of them theorized that before the known civilizations there were some people who had mastered or learned to till the soil but had no cities, pottery or complex religion.

The mystery of the "lost" cultures was one that fascinated me. My own observations and knowledge of all the available studies convinced me that somewhere in the northern part of Mexico I could find the answer to the riddle.

Certain clues already existed as signposts. Scientists generally agree that in the twilight history of man, nomadic groups—driven in a desperate search for food—crossed the great land bridge that probably existed at the Bering straits, where he frosty reaches of Siberia today nearly touch Alaska.

It was as if Asia were a great pitcher whose lip touched the North American continent spilling prehistoric man into the new land.

These early, primitive interlopers funneled into the great plains area of the United States where their existence has been proved by innumerable excavations.

Remains of early man, too similar to be coincidental, also were found in South America. If the great plains area could be considered the funnel through which prehistoric man passed on his way to South America, I was convinced that the spout of the funnel probably would be found in the northern reaches of Mexico.

A study of the map indicated the state of Tamaulipas as the logical spot.

The state is isolated enough from other sections of Mexico so that few archeologists have made any but cursory examinations of the territory.

The area itself was on the fringe of the civilization of the Aztecs and Mayas. I was relatively confident that if there were signs of early man there they would not be blotted out by the encroachments of later civilizations.

My first expedition to Tamaulipas in 1946 was conducted along the coast where I was able to establish successfully that trade had been carried on between Mexican cultures and the mound builders of the Mississippi Valley as early as 1100 AD.

And it was on this first expedition that I uncovered an entirely new people, the Pueblitos, whose ruined cities were hidden in the mountain fastness of the Sierra del Tamaulipas.

The discovery of the Pueblitos culture, which existed from about 700 to 1300 AD, proved to be a goldmine—for through it I accidentally stumbled on the origins of early man in Mexico!

At Grantham, Lincolnshire, England, at Angel Inn, King Richard III (1452-1485) signed the Duke of Buckingham's death warrant.

Pupils Pen Essays On Democracy

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the last in a series of nine prize-winning essays on Democracy written by Circleville school pupils. One essay was selected as the best from each of the nine upper grades in Circleville.

Why American Democracy Is Best Government On Earth
By ROY DENHAM
Twelfth Grade

Support Democracy? Why bother? In the first place, a Democracy is the only type of government that can exist for a long period of time. Communistic and socialistic states, oligarchies, and other totalitarian forms of government soon become corrupt and fall apart. Even a Democracy is not perfect, but it is the closest to perfection of any governmental type yet conceived.

If those advocates of the Russian form of government—the Lenin-Stalin interpretation of the theories of Karl Marx—would ever stop to think, they would realize that Russia is not a workers' paradise where everything is owned and controlled by the people; but a giant slave camp where no one can own, do, say, or think without the consent of Josef Stalin and the Politburo.

Neither can a socialistic state remain financially solvent; we are paying large sums for the support of Great Britain; perhaps before we adopt the Truman plan of gradual socialism we should make sure that some other country is around to support us.

The second and the most important reason why we should support a Democratic form of government is that none other gives its people so much. The freedoms given to us by our constitution and the Bill of Rights are unequalled anywhere.

In America, any person can say what he wishes about the government and still be legally safe. In Russia he would be shot without benefit of hearing, trial by jury, or the rights of habeas corpus and legal counsel.

In America we have complete religious freedom. You can worship whom you wish, and if your choice is Buddha, Mohammed, Baha'i, or any other, no one can force you to change. In Russia there is only atheism. The "brains" in the Kremlin realize that Communism cannot exist alongside Christianity or any other religion. Religion is therefore banned; Father Abraham is worshiped underground—Uncle Joseph in public.

"Freedom from fear." Just three ordinary words—but consider how much they mean to us here in America. No need to fear if some stray word or careless deed might be reported to the authorities. No fear of secret police, arresting people and confiscating property at the slightest excuse. No fear that the police will decide that you have been thinking for yourself instead of letting the government think for you and reward your effort with a vacation. (Ural Mts. Siberia, all points west).

Freedom from want is another of the big items on our Democratic scorecard. The three great wants of man—food, clothing and shelter—are almost satisfied in this great country of ours. True, there is still a severe housing shortage and you can't always get the brand of food you want. In America most of us get our food in stores, not in breadlines; in Soviet dominated countries this is not true. For some reason fewer people freeze and starve here than in Russia. Could it possibly be that the USSR is not the Utopia that some people say it is?

HERE ARE PRINCIPALS in the mock sky battle ordered by the House Armed Services committee to settle question of whether Navy fighter planes can shoot down an Air Force B-36 bomber. Behind the operation is the furor over whether defense should concentrate on building up a bomber force or a carrier plane force. The "battle," using "photo bullets" instead of shells, will take place at 40,000 feet. Speed of the jet planes is less at 40,000 feet than the maximum indicated above, probably not more than 200 mph. The big B-36, loaded lightly, can fly 185 mph at that altitude. The McDonnell Banshee is effective in scoring fatal hits within a range of 300 to 400 feet. (International)

Other wants of the people too are satisfied here. Recreation, amusement, property ownership, complete news coverage, free education, and many other rights are accepted by the American people as a matter-of-course. Is our question answered?

Perhaps we accept our heritage of freedom too matter-of-factly. Freedom can be lost a lot more easily than it can be won. We Americans should pay more attention to the way our government and others are being run. Take an active interest in your government and be an American first; place your job as an American ahead of your job as a Republican, Democrat, or Socialist. Vote at election time and know the issues before the voters. The percentage of registered voters who go regularly to the polls is not high. Yes, we have freedom here. But why not take advantage of it? Freedom is more important than ever before.

Why both to support Democracy? The answer is: to insure that, as Abraham Lincoln said, "Government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Judge's Ruling May Determine Coplon's Fate

WASHINGTON, May 31 — Defense and prosecution at the Judith Coplon spy trial today awaited a ruling by Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves which may decide the fate of the 28-year-old ex-government girl.

The ruling will decide whether papers found in Miss Coplon's purse the night of her arrest with Russian Engineer Valentin Gubitchev can be used as evidence against her.

The government claims the papers bear stolen espionage secrets which Miss Coplon planned to deliver to Gubitchev the night the FBI closed in.

The prosecutors admit that unless they can use the papers the government's case will collapse and Miss Coplon will go free.

On the other hand, they feel certain the jury will convict the girl if it is allowed to hear what was on the papers.

The 75-year-old judge is now considering a motion in which Defense Lawyer Archibald Palmer is trying to block use of the papers.

Rabies Test Fund Runs Short Here

Curb Is Ordered On Animal Checks

No more rabid animals will be tested at Pickaway County expense unless they have actually bitten human beings.

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, gave as a reason for the decision the near exhaustion of a $400 fund set up by the county to take care of unanticipated emergencies and contingencies.

The outbreak of rabies in the county this year was not anticipated, he said, and money from the fund was used to find out how extensive the disease was.

The county health department has now established that rabies exists in Pickaway, Perry, Jackson and Salt Creek townships, the health officer said.

"HEADS OF ANIMALS, both wild and domestic, are being sent to us for testing. It costs the county $5 a trip to make the tests, and the fund is almost exhausted," he explained, adding: "In the future no tests will be conducted unless a person has been bitten. If livestock are bitten, no tests will be given."

"While we are interested, we, nevertheless, feel that it is someone else's job to look after livestock, not ours. Human health is our concern."

Blackburn pointed out that when a dog froths at the mouth it does not have rabies. "This is a mistaken idea," he said. "When a dog froths at the mouth, it is a sign that the animal does not have the disease. It is generally a symptom of worms."

Bandits Lock Up 4 In Columbus Hotel, Get Cash

COLUMBUS, May 31—Two neatly dressed young men held up the Bliss hotel here early today, beat up a guest, locked four persons in a basement closet and escaped with an undetermined amount of cash.

Police said the pair, both carrying .38 calibre blue steel revolvers, entered the lobby about 1:55 a. m. and announced to Night Clerk George Jackson and Hotel Guest Harry Warren: "This is a stickup."

As the gunmen were taking $220 from Warren and an unknown amount of money from the hotel cash drawer, two other guests—Anthony Heing and a Mr. La Man—emerged from the elevator.

The bandits ordered the three hotel residents and the clerk to go to the basement and when La Man objected, one of the men hit him in the right eye with a gun barrel and kicked him in the right leg.

The gunmen made their escape on foot after locking the quartet in a basement closet. Police said the thugs were described as being about 24 or 25 years old and weighing 165 to 175 pounds. They said one was about five feet 10 inches tall and wore a brown suit.

The other was about five feet eight inches and wore a light jacket with dark trousers.

"YOU'LL NEVER LEARN" is the title of this photograph of a little girl scolding a bird—which won top honors for Ralph Winn of Peoria, Ill., Star in the annual Inland Daily Press association photo contest.

Senator Claims Slashes Needed To Miss Deficit

WASHINGTON, May 31—An administration senator predicted today that it would take a 10 percent cut in domestic spending plus a 20 percent slash in Marshall Plan funds to avoid a federal deficit in the next fiscal year.

The prediction was made by Sen. McClellan, (D-Ark.) as his Senate Executive Expenditures Committee opened economy hearings. He urged administration fiscal leaders to point out any "soft spots" in President Truman's $42 billion budget.

McClellan's hope is to apply cuts where they would hurt the least.

Sen. Tydings, (D) Md., co-sponsor of one of the two economy resolutions pending before the committee, was listed as the first witness in the hearings. McClellan asserted that his service on the Hoover Commission had convinced him that any substantial reduction in federal spending is a "delicate operation." He said he was certain, among other things, that "across the board" cuts were out.

He emphasized that items like debt interest, contract obligations and grants in aid to the states are fixed charges.

Ballistic Tests May Identify Lynching Leader

IRWINTON, Ga., May 31—Ballistic tests of the bullet fired in the year's first lynching were to be made today and Gov. Herman Talmadge said every Georgia law enforcement agency would be used to track down the killers.

Wilkinson County Sheriff George Hatcher said last night he would order removal of the bullet from the body of Caleb (Pickie Pie) Hill, Jr. The 28-year-old Negro chalk miner was forcibly taken from the county jail here and shot to death.

Hatcher blamed the lynching on the rumor he had been killed by Hill, who was arrested about midnight Sunday during a disturbance in a Negro roadhouse.

A fellow prisoner, Tom Carswell, told a coroner's jury two "heavy set" white men entered the cell early yesterday morning and said, "come on Pickie Pie."

He testified the men were not hooded or masked but said he could not identify them because the only light in the cell was that provided by matches.

Hill's body was found several hours later at the side of a highway about three miles from Irwinton. He had been shot twice in the head.

The sheriff said Hill had shot at him at the night spot but that the bullet had missed. The shooting led to the rumor that Sheriff Hatcher had been killed or wounded.

Rabies Test Fund Runs Short Here

Curb Is Ordered On Animal Checks

No more rabid animals will be tested at Pickaway County expense unless they have actually bitten human beings.

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, gave as a reason for the decision the near exhaustion of a $400 fund set up by the county to take care of unanticipated emergencies and contingencies.

The outbreak of rabies in the county this year was not anticipated, he said, and money from the fund was used to find out how extensive the disease was.

The county health department has now established that rabies exists in Pickaway, Perry, Jackson and Salt Creek Townships, the health officer said.

"HEADS OF ANIMALS, both wild and domestic, are being sent to us for testing. It costs the county $5 a trip to make the tests, and the fund is almost exhausted," he explained, adding: "In the future no tests will be conducted unless a person has been bitten. If livestock are bitten, no tests will be given."

"While we are interested, we, nevertheless, feel that it is someone else's job to look after livestock, not ours. Human health is our concern."

Blackburn pointed out that when a dog froths at the mouth it does not have rabies. "This is a mistaken idea," he said. "When a dog froths at the mouth, it is a sign that the animal does not have the disease. It is generally a symptom of worms."

Bandits Lock Up 4 In Columbus Hotel, Get Cash

COLUMBUS, May 31—Two neatly dressed young men held up the Bliss hotel here early today, beat up a guest, locked four persons in a basement closet and escaped with an undetermined amount of cash.

Police said the pair, both carrying .38 calibre blue steel revolvers, entered the lobby about 1:55 a. m. and announced to Night Clerk George Jackson and Hotel Guest Harry Warren:

"This is a stickup." As the gunmen were taking $220 from Warren and an unknown amount of money from the hotel cash drawer, two other guests—Anthony Heing and a Mr. La Man—emerged from the elevator.

The bandits ordered the three hotel residents and the clerk to go to the basement and when La Man objected, one of the men hit him in the right eye with a gun barrel and kicked him in the right leg.

The gunmen made their escape on foot after locking the quartet in a basement closet. Police said the thugs were described as being about 24 or 25 years old and weighing 165 to 175 pounds. They said one was about five feet 10 inches tall and wore a brown suit.

The other was about five feet eight inches and wore a light jacket with dark trousers.

Ballistic Tests May Identify Lynching Leader

IRWINTON, Ga., May 31—Ballistic tests of the bullet fired in the year's first lynching were to be made today and Gov. Herman Talmadge said every Georgia law enforcement agency would be used to track down the killers.

Wilkinson County Sheriff George Hatcher said last night he would order removal of the bullet from the body of Caleb (Pickie Pie) Hill, Jr. The 28-year-old Negro chalk miner was forcibly taken from the county jail here and shot to death.

Hatcher blamed the lynching on the rumor he had been killed by Hill, who was arrested about midnight Sunday during a disturbance in a Negro roadhouse.

A fellow prisoner, Tom Carswell, told a coroner's jury two "heavy set" white men entered the cell early yesterday morning and said, "come on Pickie Pie."

He testified the men were not hooded or masked but said he could not identify them because the only light in the cell was that provided by matches.

Hill's body was found several hours later at the side of a highway about three miles from Irwinton. He had been shot twice in the head.

The sheriff said Hill had shot at him at the night spot but that the bullet had missed. The shooting led to the rumor that Sheriff Hatcher had been killed or wounded.

Senator Claims Slashes Needed To Miss Deficit

WASHINGTON, May 31—An administration senator predicted today that it would take a 10 percent cut in domestic spending plus a 20 percent slash in Marshall Plan funds to avoid a federal deficit in the next fiscal year.

The prediction was made by Sen. McClellan, (D-Ark.) as his Senate Executive Expenditures Committee opened economy hearings. He urged administration fiscal leaders to point out any "soft spots" in President Truman's $42 billion budget.

McClellan's hope is to apply cuts where they would hurt the least.

Sen. Tydings, (D) Md., co-sponsor of one of the two economy resolutions, pending before the committee, was listed as the first witness in the hearings.

McClellan asserted that his service on the Hoover Commission had convinced him that any substantial reduction in federal spending is a "delicate operation." He said he was certain, among other things, that "across the board" cuts were out.

He emphasized that items like debt interest, contract obligations and grants in aid to the states are fixed charges.

10,000 Visit FDR's Grave

HYDE PARK, N. Y., May 31—Almost 10,000 persons filed past the grave of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt during yesterday's Memorial Day observance.

Undersecretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman spoke at special services attended by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt; Elliott Roosevelt and his actress-wife, Faye Emerson, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr.

Plumbers Ready For Convention

CLEVELAND, May 31—The 67th annual convention of the National Association of Master Plumbers was to get down to business here today.

The advance guard of more than 1,000 of the estimated 3,500 delegates to the plumbing industry convention spent yesterday attending the opening of the Home Comfort Exposition, which is being held in conjunction with the conference.

Progress and future development in the industry were to be the themes of today's principal addresses.

TIME FOR HOBBIES

WEBSTER defines a hobby as "an occupation or interest to which one gives his spare time."

Spare time is the object of wishful longing on the part of the world's workers, most of whom have little energy to spare for the cultivation of hobbies. It seems logical then that older people who have voluntarily or involuntarily retired from active work should fall back on hobbies for occupation.

The Welfare Department of New York City, taking stock of the growing number of candidates for old-age assistance, found many of them living singly in furnished rooms or boarding homes, with no occupation for their long days. Community centers have been established for these citizens, where occupations such as needlecraft, leatherwork, model-making, sculpture, painting, and collecting can be carried on. These centers are life-savers for lonely old people, who derive immense benefit, not only from their occupations, but from group activities, and contact with others of their own age. Some results of their work are shown at the Annual Hobby Show for Older Persons, which is held at the American Museum of Natural History.

Many old people slump into ill-health, either mental or physical, from sheer boredom resulting from lack of occupation. A hobby which can be carried on at home or in a community project may make these latter years productive, healthy, and happy. Quite often, also, work in the crafts turns out to be remunerative.

DEMOCRACY IN JAPAN

FOR TWO years Japan has been governed by a constitution supplied by American occupying forces, and this radical departure from the old Imperial government has not so far gained the full co-operation of the people.

This conclusion has been reached by Japanese officials and scholars who have recently published the results of their investigations into the workings of democracy in Japan. The tendency is still for the mass of the people to bow unquestioningly to authority imposed from above. Authority in this case takes the form of a huge body of bureaucrats who are not averse to keeping their power to themselves.

The lower house of the Diet, or legislature, is inactive, being either unwilling or unable to propose legislation or draft laws, according to critics.

It is not surprising that this is true. The results of centuries of submission to absolute authority cannot be overcome in two years. The Japanese people must be educated for political responsibility before they can function in self-government. Democracy cannot be successfully thrust upon a people who are not ready for it, or who do not actively desire it. The wish for self-government must come before the act.

These Days

The other day I bought a railroad ticket and along with it came this notice in red ink:

"The total amount you have paid for your ticket includes federal transportation tax. This tax amounts to 15 percent of the tariff fare for your ticket, and is in addition to the charge made by this railroad."

"This tax was a World War II measure designed in part to discourage civilian travel. There is no longer any need from this standpoint to continue to impose this extra burden on you."

"If you feel that this tax should now be repealed, you may wish to advise your congressman accordingly."

That is a very smart thing for the railroads to do. Most of us imagine that we are paying high prices for goods and services. If each seller of anything would stipulate the true price as distinct from taxes, federal, state and local, that are added to the price, it would give the buyer a better idea of the government take. For instance, if each package of cigarettes contained such information, the smoker would realize how large a part of the price he pays is not for cigarettes but to keep alive some 6,000,000 Americans who are employed by all kinds of officials, federal state, and local.

These officials have fallen on us like a plague of locusts eating up our earnings. They all require desks, chairs, office space, working utensils. Some of them have government-paid and serviced automobiles. Some are even housed at government expense. What do they do for us? We could probably get along with a third as many.

What this means is that a large part of the American population is hardly familiar with what used to be normal American living; that is, they do not know the United States as it was before two world wars and a depression. They were born after World War I and they had their childhood during the depression. They hit World War II in their youth. Most of them heard, as children, of their parents' difficulties, but experienced life only under a government that took care of people out of taxes. Most of them have never known the thrill of being a "self-made man." Dependence is not as abhorrent to them as it is to an older generation that knew full independence.

Again, politically, 62.3 percent of the population were not born or were less than 21 years of age on March 4, 1933. When we speak of a two-party system, they have no conception of what that really means. To most of them, Franklin D. Roosevelt was always President of the United States, with Harry Truman as a second only because Roosevelt died. They may, if they elected to study American history, know of some other Presidents, but they never experienced one, nor have they ever witnessed a political campaign in which the fundamental issues that face the American people were discussed. There have been no such campaigns during their mature years.

They do not know what a simple billion dollar budget means. They have never worked and received a full pay envelope without the government deducting a good share of their earnings. They are used to such deductions.

ASTRONOMERS are getting farther and farther into space, and their conclusion seems to be, as laymen already suspected, that there is no end to it.

VOTERS who are too lazy to vote are just as bad as those who vote for the other party.

A Serious Nerve Inflammation

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

INFECTIOUS polyneuritis is one of the more serious forms of nerve inflammation. As the name indicates, many of the nerves are affected at once.

The exact cause of this disorder has not been found, though it is suspected that a virus, that smallest of disease-makers, may be at the root of the trouble. However this may be, about one-half of the cases seem to follow some infection in the nose and throat. Others seem to occur as the result of poisoning with lead or arsenic, or of a severe vitamin deficiency, particularly of the vitamin B-complex.

Paralysis of Muscles

In this condition there may be paralysis of the muscles of the trunk, back, neck, abdomen, and chest. During the acute or active stage of the condition, the patient may not be able to move the arms or legs, raise his head, or feed himself. The muscles of chewing and those which move the eyes are rarely involved. It is common, however, to have difficulty in swallowing and talking. These are among the first symptoms to disappear as the patient recovers.

The amount of paralysis varies greatly in different cases. Once the power begins to return to the muscles, improvement occurs rapidly.

There may also be such symptoms as tingling or numbness in the feet or hands, or even in the tongue or face. These symptoms may occur several days or even weeks before paralysis. Redness of the hands and feet, and sweating of the palms and soles may be present. Fever is also noted in some of the patients.

Good Nursing Care

In treating patients with polyneuritis, good nursing care is extremely important. Pain may be relieved by the giving of drugs which the physician may prescribe. Hot packs afford relief from pain in many cases. It may be necessary in some instances to put the patient in a respirator. If mucus collects in the throat, it may be sucked out with the proper device. Splints may be employed to prevent the stretching of weakened muscles. Later on, massage and active exercise are of help.

It would appear that there is a great need for thorough study of this condition so that the exact cause may be found and more adequate means of treatment discovered.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. P.: I have ringing in the ears and a burning sensation in the back of my neck. Is this due to blood pressure or menopause?

Answer: The symptoms you describe might be due to a blood pressure disturbance. It is not likely that they are due to the menopause.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Things must be getting tough. 14 men are so desperate they're willing to run for mayor of New York.

It's really not a tough job. Any fellow who can keep eight million people happy would do. But can Milton Berle spare the time?

That would be a switch. . . an office holder who was a comic going in.

Mayor of New York is supposed to be the biggest job next to the presidency but Franklin Jr. bought his commutation ticket to Washington two weeks too soon.

Or as the old lady remarked as she fried the sardine: "Now let me tell you about the big one that got away."

Anyway, Memorial Day opened the picnic season but O'Dwyer sure opened it two days early for Tammany.

We hear the fire department has been called out three times already to smoke-filled rooms.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

LEADING Chip's horse, they started down the trail, Ives explaining about the man on guard as they walked. Ground-anchoring the horse among the trees, Chip mapped a piece of strategy that sent the two of them cat-footing forward in different directions, each keeping to cover and moving upon the ranch-house from an opposite side. Chip had lost sight of Ives as he crawled on hands and knees around a corner of the house to within twenty feet of the sentry. Now Chip stood poised and ready, and he was this way when Ives stepped boldly into sight at the far corner of the house and called, "Hey, Yampa!"

That brought the sentry whirling around, his jaw falling and his hand sweeping toward his holstered gun. But at that instant while Ives was claiming the man's astonished attention, Chip darted forward in a wild, lunging dive that hurled him upon the sentry and bore the man to the ground. The fellow's gun exploded, but the man had gotten it tangled in his holster. Grasping the sentry by the shirt front, Chip hauled him erect, measured the distance to the man's stubbled jaw and let go with a left that dropped the man again, his eyes rolling upward.

"Out!" Chip panted and blew upon his bruised knuckles. Ives, coming forward, began stripping the bullet-studded belt from the man's middle. "At least we've got ourselves a gun," he observed.

"There may be another jigger on watch inside the house. I couldn't tell for sure before I left. But likely not; otherwise the gunshot would have fetched him."

"I'll go after the girl," Chip said. "You stay here and keep an eye peeled. If this fellow starts coming awake, tap him on the head. Or dump him into yonder well and cool him off, if it isn't too deep."

Ives was all eagerness now; patiently he would have preferred to go into the house to Lia's rescue, but he could see the need for a man to stay on guard for he didn't protest. Chip said, "You keep the gun. Fire it as a signal if anybody comes looting."

Shouldering into the house, he threaded the hallway and climbed to the second story. There was no one on guard, and he called softly, "Lia. . . ? Miss Alessandro. . . ?" and there was a hub-bub at one of the doors studding this hall.

"Who is it?" Lia cried. "I heard a shot!"

Beside the door a key hung on a nail, obviously for the convenience of whoever brought food to the girl. Chip unlocked the door and let himself into the room, but he closed the door then and put his back to it, watching the swift play of emotion that crossed the face of this dark and exotic girl as she saw him.

"I'm Chip Halliday," he said. "You've seen me before, haven't you?"

Her hand fluttered to her throat, her dark eyes growing wider, and in his position to be mixed up in the storm—remember? I rode up to your gate, got through it, and bumped up against that well out in the yard. I'd almost forgotten about the well until I heard a man sing The Old Oaken Bucket. Strange how important the little things can sometimes be. I was almost out on my feet, that night, but I stayed alive long enough to see you come out of this house—

you and Seton Alessandro carrying the body of Justin St. John between you. Then I passed out."

He thought she was going to scream; her eyes grew even wider, but she said in a small and shaky voice, "That's true!"

"You must have loaded me back onto my horse," he said. "You moved me to the Bear Creek schoolhouse and dumped me in its yard. Up until last night, it never occurred to me that the place where I went unconscious and the place where I recovered might have been miles apart. And Alessandro left St. John's body nearby, too—left it where suspicion would point at Clark Rayburn when the body was found, seeing as Rayburn was at the schoolhouse that night. Is that right?"

She nodded, and Chip said in a gentler voice, "Don't be afraid, girl. I'm here to get you out of this hell-hole. Come on. Colorado Jack Ives is waiting for us below."

Taking her by the wrist, he led her down the stairs and out of the house. The tenseness left Ives as they appeared, and Lia was instantly into his arms. Smiling, Chip said, "That'll have to wait until we've more time, folks. Me, I'll breathe easier when this place is behind us."

"That's right," Ives agreed. "And the first thing we'll need is horses. Wait here and I'll throw gear on three of Alessandro's saddlehorses. Halliday, you might as well leave your horse and take a fresh mount. But you keep a watch to the south meanwhile. I won't be able to see the trail from town from behind the house, but I'll keep an eye peeled to the north while I'm saddling. If any of the boys should come down out of the basin, I'll see 'em first."

"A good plan," Chip judged. "Get at it, and make it fast." Ives instantly started around the house, and Lia would have followed him, but Chip seized her wrist again.

"I can cook and listen at the same time," he said. "There's a lot I want to hear from you. A good man's neck is in danger of getting stretched by a hangman's rope, and the sooner I have the whole truth the better. How about it?"

Alessandro's sentry still sprawled nearby; he had not yet begun to groan his way back to consciousness. Lia cast a swift glance at the man, and words came with a rush. "Alessandro killed St. John," she said. "But he didn't mean for me to know. I was out riding that night, and when the rain started I was nearer this ranch than town. So I rode here, and I came in to find St. John dead on the floor of the study and Alessandro standing over him, a smoking gun in his hand."

Chip said, "Something tells me you were mighty close to death yourself at that moment."

"He told me the man was an outlaw who'd come to enter Forlorn Valley and had broken into the ranchhouse to steal whatever he could. He was terribly agitated; he said it wasn't good for a man in his position to be mixed up in a killing. He said he must move the body far away, and when it was found there'd be no connection between it and him."

"And you believed that?" Chip asked dubiously.

"Up until then, he'd given me nothing but kindness," she said. "He was the same to me as a father, and he was in trouble. Yes, I believed him, and I helped carry the body outside. That was when we found you, face down in the yard. With my help he put you on your horse and tied you there. Then we loaded St. John's body on another horse. And we rode till we came to the schoolhouse. There was a light in the teacher's window, and we could see the school teacher and a man inside. The man was Clark Rayburn; I'd seen him before when he came to this ranch on business for the Forlorners."

Chip glanced southward; no sign there of approaching riders. A flurry of sound reached him from the corral behind the house; that would be Ives roping out the saddlers. Glancing at Lia, Chip said, "And you left me in the schoolhouse yard?"

"He said you'd need help and attention when you recovered and it was best to leave you close to those people."

"I see," Chip said. "The truth is that he didn't dare kill me with you there to witness it. Probably he had the idea that I was, but he wanted me off his ranch in case I'd happened to see too much. So he left me at the schoolhouse, gambling, perhaps, that I'd presume I'd gone unconscious there. I'd seen a man and a girl; there was another man and girl in the teacherage. It made a perfect opportunity from Alessandro's viewpoint."

"We hid St. John's body after that, and we rode back to town," Lia went on. "He swore me to secrecy again and again, but I saw the whole truth when I overheard him talking to Tate Strunk a couple of days later. When Strunk told about St. John and insinuated that Alessandro had reason for wanting St. John dead, I knew that St. John had been the man who was killed out here."

"Colorado Jack told me about that talk you overheard," Chip said. "No wonder you wanted to run away from Alessandro when you realized the truth. I suppose Alessandro had been keeping St. John prisoner here; St. John must have made the mistake of sizing up Alessandro as an honest man who had the key to Forlorn Valley. Probably St. John came back to Alessandro to ask that devil to get him into the valley with the pardon. Why Alessandro killed him that particular night, we'll probably never know. Perhaps it was because the storm gave Alessandro his chance to remove the body without anyone seeing him. He wasn't counting on you showing up."

She said, "I hate him!"

"He's fastened a tight frame on Clark Rayburn," Chip said. "But you're the girl who can bust it wide open. Are you willing to tell a jury the things you've just told me?"

Something in her look gave Chip an inkling of how it had been last evening when Seton Alessandro had humiliated her with his story of her past. She said, "The sooner I face a jury, the better. I'll speak, Mr. Halliday!"

"Good girl!" he said and glanced around. "It's about time Ives had those saddlers ready. Let's see what's keeping him."

But when they turned the corner of the house, they found themselves confronted by Alessandro's new foreman, Plute, who stood ready and waiting for them, a leveled gun in his hand.

Try, Stop Me

When Time Magazine sent two crack reporters to interview Tallulah Bankhead, the tempestuous star began chattering as they entered the drawing room, and didn't stop for a solid half-hour. Then she paused for breath and inquired, "Have you another question to ask me?" One of the reporters reminded her, "We haven't opened our mouths!"

Miss Bankhead is apt to be a bit absent-minded when the question of her age comes up. Her sister Eugenia says ruefully, "Every time Tallulah takes off a year, I have to, too. This can't go on much further because she's got me in diapers now." Ted Shane calls attention to the pathetic drunk in Venice who lay down in the gutter to sleep it off.

President's Tiff With Byrd | No Purge, Urge Strategists
Worries Truman's Top Aides | Seeking Peace Within Party

WASHINGTON—Just when President Truman's top political strategists thought they had convinced him it would be unwise to try to purge Democratic rebels against his domestic program, the unpredictable chief executive upset the apple cart.

The men who chart what they think would be a prudent political policy of "hands off" for Mr. Truman in 1950 now are worried again. They sense that the old Truman temper is getting the better of what ought to be the new Truman better judgment.

Latest indication that Mr. Truman still is toying with the idea of again barnstorming the country in behalf of his program came recently when he talked to a group of veterans.

The president told the vets that there are too many "Byrds" in the Senate—meaning Senator Harry Byrd (D), Virginia, who bucks the president down the line on the home front, while supporting him in world affairs.

Byrd immediately said he is "waiting around" for the president to start "purging."

Mr. Truman's strategists are warning him that, even if he suffers a stunning defeat on Taft-Hartley repeal, a "purge" will only emphasize it next year—and will not help either Mr. Truman, or the party.

● DECISION—Probably the most difficult decision of the congressional session will be made by Senator Robert A. Taft (R), Ohio, on whether to vote for ratification of the Atlantic Pact.

He had fully determined to vote for the pact before Secretary of State Dean Acheson told the Senate that this would morally commit the senators to vote the accompanying program of arms for Europe.

Taft, definitely opposed to the arms program, now is restudying his decision. He believes that the arms program would violate the United Nations charter and, in fact, could be interpreted as an aggressive move.

What makes Taft's decision so difficult is the unlikelihood that two-thirds of the Senate could be mustered for any purpose, even ratification of the pact, over his opposition.

He is extremely influential with a number of Democrats as well as Republicans. On his decision may hang the fate of the pact for this session of Congress.

● VETO—There is a story going the rounds in Washington that Defense Secretary Louis Johnson virtually invited Jonathan Daniels to decline President Truman's offer of the post of secretary of the Navy.

According to the story, which seems to be well authenticated, Daniels naturally declined.

Daniels, once an administrative assistant to the late President Roosevelt and later acting press secretary for Mr. Truman, was offered the Navy post some time ago.

He went to see the president in the company of Johnson on May 7, and at that time is reported to have said that he was sorry, but could not accept.

Before the call, however, Daniels talked with Johnson. Johnson is said to have told Daniels that, although he had someone else in mind for the post, he was willing to go through with the appointment, since the president had offered it to Daniels.

Daniels, by no means

TIME FOR HOBBIES

WEBSTER defines a hobby as "an occupation or interest to which one gives his spare time."

Spare time is the object of wishful longing on the part of the world's workers, most of whom have little energy to spare for the cultivation of hobbies. It seems logical then that older people who have voluntarily or involuntarily retired from active work should fall back on hobbies for occupation.

The Welfare Department of New York City, taking stock of the growing number of candidates for old-age assistance, found many of them living singly in furnished rooms or boarding homes, with no occupation for their long days. Community centers have been established for these citizens, where occupations such as needlecraft, leatherwork, model-making, sculpture, painting, and collecting can be carried on. These centers are life-savers for lonely old people, who derive immense benefit, not only from their occupations, but from group activities, and contact with others of their own age. Some results of their work are shown at the Annual Hobby Show for Older Persons, which is held at the American Museum of Natural History.

Many old people slump, into ill-health, either mental or physical, from sheer boredom resulting from lack of occupation. A hobby which can be carried on at home or in a community project may make these latter years productive, healthy, and happy. Quite often, also, work in the crafts turns out to be remunerative.

DEMOCRACY IN JAPAN

FOR TWO years Japan has been governed by a constitution supplied by American occupying forces, and this radical departure from the old Imperial government has not so far gained the full co-operation of the people.

This conclusion has been reached by Japanese officials and scholars who have recently published the results of their investigations into the workings of democracy in Japan. The tendency is still for the mass of the people to bow unquestioningly to authority imposed from above. Authority in this case takes the form of a huge body of bureaucrats who are not averse to keeping their power to themselves.

The lower house of the Diet, or legislature, is inactive, being either unwilling or unable to propose legislation or draft laws, according to critics.

It is not surprising that this is true. The results of centuries of submission to absolute authority cannot be overcome in two years. The Japanese people must be educated for political responsibility before they can function in self-government. Democracy cannot be successfully thrust upon a people who are not ready for it, or who do not actively desire it. The wish for self-government must come before the act.

These Days

The other day I bought a railroad ticket and along with it came this notice in red ink:

"The total amount you have paid for your ticket includes federal transportation tax. This tax amounts to 15 percent of the tariff fare for your ticket, and is in addition to the charge made by this railroad.

"This tax was a World War II measure designed in part to discourage civilian travel. There is no longer any need from this standpoint to continue to impose this extra burden on you.

"If you feel that this tax should now be repealed, you may wish to advise your congressman accordingly."

That is a very smart thing for the railroads to do. Most of us imagine that we are paying high prices for goods and services. If each seller of anything would stipulate the true price as distinct from taxes, federal, state and local, that are added to the price, it would give the buyer a better idea of the government take. For instance, if each package of cigarettes contained such information, the smoker would realize how large a part of the price he pays is not for cigarettes but to keep alive some 6,000,000 Americans who are employed by all kinds of officials, federal state, and local.

These officials have fallen on us like a plague of locusts eating up our earnings. They all require desks, chairs, office space, working utensils. Some of them have government-paid and serviced automobiles. Some are even housed at government expense. What do they do for us? We could probably get along with a third as many.

What this means is that a large part of the American population is hardly familiar with what used to be normal American living; that is, they do not know the United States as it was before two world wars and a depression. They were born after World War I and they had their childhood during the depression. They hit World War II in their youth. Most of them heard, as children, of their parents' difficulties, but experienced life only under a government that took care of people out of taxes. Most of them have never known the thrill of being a "self-made man." Dependence is not as abhorrent to them as it is to an older generation that knew full independence.

Again, politically, 62.3 percent of the population were not born or were less than 21 years of age on March 4, 1933. When we speak of a two-party system, they have no conception of what that really means. To most of them, Franklin D. Roosevelt was always President of the United States, with Harry Truman as a seconder only because Roosevelt died. They may, if they elected to study American history, know of some other Presidents, but they never experienced one, nor have they ever witnessed a political campaign in which the fundamental issues that face the American people were discussed. There have been no such campaigns during their mature years.

They do not know what a simple billion dollar budget means. They have never worked and received a full pay envelope without the government deducting a good share of their earnings. They are used to such deductions.

ASTRONOMERS are getting farther and farther into space, and their conclusion seems to be, as laymen already suspected, that there is no end to it.

VOTERS who are too lazy to vote are just as bad as those who vote for the other party.

A Serious Nerve Inflammation

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

INFECTIOUS polyneuritis is one of the more serious forms of nerve inflammation. As the name indicates, many of the nerves are affected at once.

The exact cause of this disorder has not been found, though it is suspected that a virus, that smallest of disease-makers, may be at the root of the trouble. However this may be, about one-half of the cases seem to follow some infection in the nose and throat. Others seem to occur as the result of poisoning with lead or arsenic, or of a severe vitamin deficiency, particularly of the vitamin B-complex.

Paralysis of Muscles In this condition there may be paralysis of the muscles of the trunk, back, neck, abdomen, and chest. During the acute or active stage of the condition, the patient may not be able to move the arms or legs, raise his head, or feed himself. The muscles of chewing and those which move the eyes are rarely involved. It is common, however, to have difficulty in swallowing and talking. These are among the first symptoms to disappear as the patient recovers.

The amount of paralysis varies greatly in different cases. Once the power begins to return to the muscles, improvement occurs rapidly. There may also be such symptoms as tingling or numbness in the feet or hands, or even in the tongue or face. These symptoms may occur several days or even weeks before paralysis. Redness of the hands and feet, and sweating of the palms and soles may be present. Fever is also noted in some of the patients.

Good Nursing Care

In treating patients with polyneuritis, good nursing care is extremely important. Pain may be relieved by the giving of drugs which the physician may prescribe. Hot packs afford relief from pain in many cases. It may be necessary in some instances to put the patient in a respirator. If mucus collects in the throat, it may be sucked out with the proper device. Splints may be employed to prevent the stretching of weakened muscles. Later on, massage and active exercise are of help.

It would appear that there is a great need for thorough study of this condition so that the exact cause may be found and more adequate means of treatment discovered.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. P.: I have ringing in the ears and a burning sensation in the back of my neck. Is this due to blood pressure or menopause?

Answer: The symptoms you describe might be due to a blood pressure disturbance. It is not likely that they are due to the menopause.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Things must be getting tough. 14 men are so desperate they're willing to run for mayor of New York.

It's really not a tough job. Any fellow who can keep eight million people happy would do. But can Milton Berle spare the time?

That would be a switch. An office holder who was a comic going in.

Mayor of New York is supposed to be the biggest job next to the presidency but Franklin Jr. bought his commutation ticket to Washington two weeks too soon.

Or as the old lady remarked as she fried the sardine: "Now let me tell you about the big one that got away."

Anyway, Memorial Day opened the picnic season but O'Dwyer sure opened it two days early for Tammany.

We hear the fire department has been called out three times already to smoke-filled rooms.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

LEADING Chip's horse, they started down the trail, Ives explaining about the man on guard as they walked. Ground-anchoring, the horse among the trees, Chip mapped a piece of strategy that sent the two of them cat-footing forward in different directions, each keeping to cover and moving upon the ranch-house from an opposite side. Chip had lost sight of Ives as he crawled on hands and knees around a corner of the house to within twenty feet of the sentry. Now Chip stood poised and ready, and he was this way when Ives stepped boldly into sight at the far corner of the house and called, "Hey, Yampai!"

That brought the sentry whirling around, his jaw falling and his hand sweeping toward his holster. But at that instant while Ives was claiming the man's astonished attention, Chip darted forward in a wild, lunging dive that hurled him upon the sentry and bore the man to the ground. The fellow's gun exploded, but the man had gotten it tangled in his holster. Grasping the sentry by the shirt front, Chip hauled him erect, measured the distance to the man's stubbled jaw and let go with a left that dropped the man again, his eyes rolling upward.

"Out!" Chip panted and blew upon his bruised knuckles. Ives, coming forward, began stripping the bullet-studded belt from the man's middle. "At least we've got ourselves a gun," he observed. "There may be another jitter on watch inside the house. I couldn't tell for sure before I left. But likely not; otherwise the gunshot would have fetched him."

"I'll go after the girl," Chip said. "You stay here and keep an eye peeled. If this fellow starts coming awake, tap him on the head. Or dump him into yonder well and cool him off, if it isn't too deep."

Ives was all eagerness now; patiently he would have preferred to go into the house to Lia's rescue, but he could see the need for a man to stay on guard for he didn't protest. Chip said, "You keep the gun. Fire it as a signal if anybody comes looting."

Shouldering into the house, he threaded the hallway and climbed to the second story. There was no one on guard, and he called softly, "Lia...? Miss Alessandro...?" and there was a hub-bub at one of the doors studding this hall.

"Who is it?" Lia cried. "I heard a shot—"

Beside the door a key hung on a nail, obviously for the convenience of whoever brought food to the girl. Chip unlocked the door and let himself into the room, but he closed the door then and put his back to it, watching the swift play of emotion that crossed the face of this dark and exotic girl as she saw him.

"I'm Chip Halliday," he said. "You've seen me before, haven't you?"

Her hand fluttered to her throat, her dark eyes growing wider, and Chip said, "I came here the night of the storm—remember? I rode up to your gate, got through it, and bumped up against that well out in the yard. I'd almost forgotten about the well until I heard a man sing The Old Oaken Bucket. Strange how important the little things can sometimes be. I was almost out on my feet, that night, but I stayed alive long enough to see you come out of this house—"

you and Seton Alessandro carrying the body of Justin St. John between you. Then I passed out."

He thought she was going to scream; her eyes grew even wider, but she said in a small and shaky voice, "That's true!"

"You must have loaded me back onto my horse," he said. "You moved me to the Bear Creek schoolhouse and dumped me in its yard. Up until last night, it never occurred to me that the place where I went unconscious and the place where I recovered might have been miles apart. And Alessandro left St. John's body nearby, too—left it where suspicion would be pointed at Clark Rayburn when the body was found, seeing as Rayburn was at the schoolhouse that night. Is that right?"

She nodded, and Chip said in a gentler voice, "Don't be afraid, girl. I'm here to get you out of this hell-hole. Come on. Colorado Jack Ives is waiting for us below."

Taking her by the wrist, he led her down the stairs and out of the house. The tenseness left Ives as they appeared, and Lia was instantly into his arms. Smiling, Chip said, "That'll have to wait until we've more time, folks. Me, I'll breathe easier when this place is behind us."

"That's first," Ives agreed. "And the first thing we'll need is horses. Wait here and I'll throw gear on three of Alessandro's saddlers, Halliday; you might as well leave your horse and take a fresh mount. But you keep a watch to the south meanwhile. I won't be able to see the trail from town behind the house, but I'll keep an eye peeled to the north while I'm saddling. If any of the boys should come down out of the basin, I'll see 'em first."

"A good plan," Chip judged. "Get at it, and make it fast." Ives instantly started around the house, and Lia would have followed him, but Chip seized her wrist again.

"I can look and listen at the same time," he said. "There's a lot I want to hear from you. A good man's mark is in danger of getting stretched by a hangman's rope, and the sooner I have the whole truth the better. How about it?"

Alessandro's sentry still sprawled nearby; he had not yet begun to groan his way back to consciousness. Lia cast a swift glance at the man, and words came with a rush. "Alessandro killed St. John," she said. "But he didn't mean for me to know. I was out riding that night, and when the rain started I was nearer this ranch than town. So I rode here, and I came in to find St. John dead on the floor of the study and Alessandro standing over him, a smoking gun in his hand."

Chip said, "Something tells me you were mighty close to death yourself at that moment."

"He told me the man was an outlaw who'd come to enter Fort Valley and had broken into the ranchhouse to steal whatever he could. He was terribly agitated; he said it wasn't good for a man in his position to be mixed up in a killing. He said he must move the body far away, and when it was found there'd be no connection between it and him."

"And you believed that?" Chip asked dubiously.

"Up until then, he'd given me nothing but kindness," she said. "He was the same to me as a father, and he was in trouble. Yes, I believed him, and I helped carry the body outside. That was when we found you, face down in the yard. With my help he put you on your horse and tied you there. Then we loaded St. John's body on another horse. And we rode till we came to the schoolhouse. There was a light in the teacher's window, and we could see the school teacher and a man inside. The man was Clark Rayburn; I'd seen him before when he came to this ranch on business for the Forlorners."

Chip glanced southward; no sign there of approaching riders. A flurry of sound reached him from the corral behind the house; that would be Ives roping out the saddlers. Glancing at Lia, Chip said, "And you left me in the schoolhouse yard?"

"He said you'd need help and attention when you recovered and it was best to leave you close to those people."

"I see," Chip said. "The truth is that he didn't dare kill me with you there to witness it. Probably he had no idea, then, who I was, but he wanted me off his ranch in case I'd happened to see too much. So he left me at the schoolhouse, gambling, perhaps, that I'd presume I'd gone unconscious there. I'd seen a man and a girl; there was another man and girl in the teacherage. It made a perfect opportunity for Alessandro's viewpoint."

"We hid St. John's body after that, and we rode back to town," Lia went on. "He swore me to secrecy again and again, but I saw the whole truth when I overheard him talking to Tate Strunk a couple of days later. When Strunk told about St. John and insinuated that Alessandro had reason for wanting St. John dead, I knew that St. John had been the man who was killed out here."

"Colorado Jack told me about that talk you overheard," Chip said. "No wonder you wanted to run away from Alessandro when you realized the truth. I suppose Alessandro had been keeping St. John prisoner here; St. John must have made the mistake of sizing up Alessandro as an honest man who had the key to Fort Valley. Probably St. John came to Alessandro to ask that devil to get him into the valley with the pardon. Why Alessandro killed him that particular night, we'll probably never know. Perhaps it was because the storm gave Alessandro his chance to remove the body without anyone seeing him. He wasn't counting on you showing up."

"She said, 'I hate him!'" "He's fastened a tight frame on Clark Rayburn," Chip said. "But you're the girl who can bust it wide open. Are you willing to tell a jury the things you've just told me?"

"Something in her look gave Chip an inkling of how it had been last evening when Seton Alessandro had humiliated her with his story of her past. She said, 'The sooner I face a jury, the better. I'll speak, Mr. Halliday.'"

"Good girl!" he said and glanced around. "It's about time Ives had those saddlers ready. Let's see what's keeping him."

But when they turned the corner of the house, they found themselves confronted by Alessandro's new foreman, Plute, who stood ready and waiting for them, a leveled gun in his hand.

Taft, definitely opposed to the arms program, now is restudying his decision. He believes that the arms program would violate the United Nations charter and, in fact, could be interpreted as an aggressive move.

What makes Taft's decision so difficult is the unlikelihood that two-thirds of the Senate could be mustered for any purpose, even ratification of the pact, over his opposition.

He is extremely influential with a number of Democrats as well as Republicans. On his decision may hang the fate of the pact for this session of Congress.

• VETO—There is a story going the rounds in Washington that Defense Secretary Louis Johnson virtually invited Jonathan Daniels to decline President Truman's offer of the post of secretary of the Navy.

According to the story, which seems to be well authenticated, Daniels naturally declined.

Daniels, once an administrative assistant to the late President Roosevelt and later acting press secretary for Mr. Truman, was offered the Navy post some time ago.

He went to see the president in the company of Johnson on May 7, and at that time is reported to have said that he was sorry, but could not accept.

Before the call, however, Daniels talked with Johnson. Johnson is said to have told Daniels that, although he had someone else in mind for the post, he was willing to go through with the appointment, since the president had offered it to Daniels.

Daniels, by no means slow to get an idea, said that under the circumstances he would not stand in the way of the Defense secretary getting the man he thought could work out best.

• ARABS—Reports to President Truman indicate that the United States may have to shoulder a new burden in the Middle East—about one million Arab refugees from Palestine.

For the most part they are destitute and homeless. Unless some permanent solution is found for their problem, they may prove a danger spot in the inflammable Middle East.

It's likely that the United States will be asked to step into the situation alone since other nations seem unable to handle it.

Angus Group Schedules Field Day

June 9 Is Set For District Event

A second annual field day has been scheduled for June 9 on the William Shaw farm three miles southeast of Williamsport by South Central Angus Breeders Association, according to Larry Best, Pickaway County extension agent.

"Angus breeders are sponsoring the event to encourage boys and girls to select and raise better quality beef cattle and to show commercial cattlemen that it pays to have good quality breeding animals in their herds," Best explained.

Trophies have been purchased by the association for presentation to winners in various divisions of judging contests, which will be conducted by Merle Thomas, associate county agent.

"The cats committee has purchased a prime Angus calf. It will be barbecued and served by Larry Kunkle, meats specialist of Ohio State university," Best said.

PROGRAM FOR the day will consist of the following:

Judging contest by J. B. McCorkle, secretary-treasurer of Ohio Angus Breeders Association; address of welcome by Dick Huffines, president, "Serving Agriculture" by Wilbur Wood, junior dean of O. S. U. College of Agriculture;

"Mutual Interest of Commercial and Purebred Cattlemen" by Jim Warner of OSU; "Type of Angus You Should Work for and Get" by Herman Purdy of OSU department of husbandry; and awarding of judging trophies.

Police Close Probe On Triple Slaying, Suicide

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 31—Police closed their investigation today of a triple murder and suicide in which a 47-year-old salesman shot to death his estranged heiress-wife and another couple and then ended his own life.

Police said Richard Peppler, an electrical appliance salesman who was under a court order restraining him from molesting his wife, Frances, 30, broke into her home here yesterday and then went on a killing spree.

The only survivor was the Peppler's 18-month-old daughter, Frances Margaret, who remained unharmed in her bed.

Richard Sieswarda, 32, a law school graduate, and his wife Stella, 30, a social worker, also were shot to death. The Sieswardas were staying with Mrs. Peppler because she feared her husband.

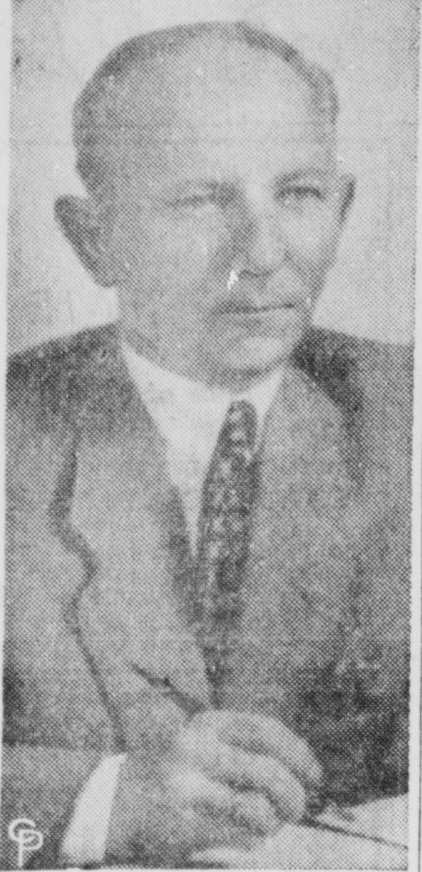

Mrs. Peppler was the daughter of the late James Duffy, wealthy hardware manufacturer, and heiress to a $500,000 fortune.

Peppler broke into the house in the early morning hours and shot Mrs. Sieswarda in the chest with his shotgun.

Sieswarda, who was sleeping in another bedroom with two guns at his side, ran into the hall when he was awakened by the shotgun blast.

Peppler, who was chasing his wife down the stairs, turned and fired the weapon a second time, dropping Sieswarda.

He caught up with his wife as she was trying to escape through a side door and shot her in the back. Then he turned the gun on himself.

World's Postwar Production Rate Tops UN's Expectations

LAKE SUCCESS, May 31—The International Labor Organization announced today that the world postwar rate of production and employment "has on the whole equalled, if not exceeded, expectations."

ILO Director-General David A. Morse declared in a report at the United Nations on world labor and economic conditions:

"Although there were signs suggesting that a recession might be in prospect in several countries, the only seriously bad spots in world production and employment during 1948 were in the defeated Axis countries and in areas where hostilities still continue."

Morse, former U. S. acting secretary of labor, admitted that progress in reconstruction and economic development in the last year has fallen short of the "more optimistic expectations." He added:

"But it has on the whole been solid, for it has been based on an appraisal of the facts as they really are and on a re-examination and reformulation of national and international policies and programs in the light of these facts."

In most countries, Morse declared, the degree and rapidity of postwar economic recovery will depend on "three great imponderables"—political accord between the major powers, the course of world inflation and the halting of falling prices and decreasing employment.

Morse pointed out that in some countries, notably Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, Ireland, Sweden, Switzerland and the United States "there is evidence suggesting that a turning point may have been reached." He continued:

"There have been sharp breaks in the prices of certain commodities, with some reflecting in cost-of-living indexes, and unemployment has risen to a greater extent than can be accounted for by purely seasonal factors."

Angus Group Schedules Field Day

June 9 Is Set For District Event

A second annual field day has been scheduled for June 9 on the William Shaw farm three miles southeast of Williamstown by South Central Angus Breeders Association, according to Larry Best, Pickaway County extension agent.

"Angus breeders are sponsoring the event to encourage boys and girls to select and raise better quality beef cattle and to show commercial cattlemen that it pays to have good quality breeding animals in their herds," Best explained.

Trophies have been purchased by the association for presentation to winners in various divisions of judging contests, which will be conducted by Merle Thomas, associate county agent.

"The cats committee has purchased a prize Angus calf. It will be barbed and served by Larry Kunkle, meats specialist of Ohio State university," Best said.

PROGRAM FOR the day will consist of the following:

Judging contest by J. B. McCorkle, secretary-treasurer of Ohio Angus Breeders Association; address of welcome by Dick Huffines, president, "Serving Agriculture" by Wilbur Wood, junior dean of O. S. U. College of Agriculture;

"Mutual Interest of Commercial and Purebred Cattlemen" by Jim Warner of OSU; "Type of Angus You Should Work for and Get" by Herman Purdy of OSU department of husbandry; and awarding of judging trophies.

Police Close Probe On Triple Slaying, Suicide

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 31—Police closed their investigation today of a triple murder and suicide in which a 47-year-old salesman shot to death his estranged heiness-wife and another couple and then ended his own life.

Police said Richard Peppler, an electrical appliance salesman who was under a court order restraining him from molesting his wife, Frances, 30, broke into her home here yesterday and then went on a killing spree.

The only survivor was the Peppler's 18-month-old daughter, Frances Margaret, who remained unharmed in her bed.

Richard Sieswarda, 32, a law school graduate, and his wife Stella, 30, a social worker, also were shot to death. The Sieswardas were staying with Mrs. Peppler because she feared her husband.

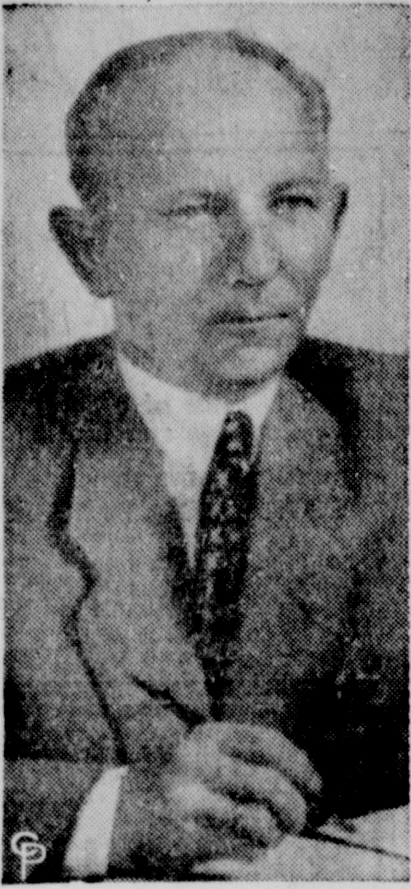

Mrs. Peppler was the daughter of the late James Duffy, wealthy hardware manufacturer, and heiness to a $500,000 fortune.

Peppler broke into the house in the early morning hours and shot Mrs. Sieswarda in the chest with his shotgun.

Sieswarda, who was sleeping in another bedroom with two guns at his side, ran into the hall when he was awakened by the shotgun blast.

Peppler, who was chasing his wife down the stairs, turned and fired the weapon a second time, dropping Sieswarda.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

Anybody want to buy a bolt of sari cloth from India? Well, there's one up in my attic and it's for sale cheap. And with it, at no extra charge, goes a framed photo of the Taj Mahal. What am I mumbling about? Well . . .

While Eleanor and I were in New Delhi, we did the usual amount of shopping around for souvenirs and gifts and, after casing and combing the big stores, we went looking for oddities in the side-street shops.

And in the window of one of them, my wife spotted a bolt of gold sari cloth which represented as many man-hours of labor as a small Cadillac.

"That's for me," said Eleanor. "It'll make a beautiful dress, and chances are we can pick it up for a song."

We went in and, sure enough, the Hindu behind the counter was willing to let it go for a song—a song out of "South Pacific"—and so I thanked him and eye-nudged my missus out of the shop.

"It only goes to show how little you care for me," pouted Eleanor as we strolled back to the hotel.

"Take it easy, darling," I said. "This is an expensive trip—planes, hotels, postcards."

"REAL GENTS never worry about price tags," said my wife, and I knew from the deep-freeze in her voice that I hadn't heard the last of the sari cloth.

Next morning, Tiki Oberi, amiable owner of the Maiden's Hotel at which we were stopping, asked if we wouldn't like to see the Taj Mahal and, before he could change his mind, we were sitting next to him in a gas buggy, dodging camels and sacred hamburgers on the road to Agra, 130 miles away.

En route, we stopped for a quick look-stare at the Kutub Minar, a hill-high stone tower which looked as if it had been designed for Moslem flagpole sitters.

Tiki told us it was a lot of centuries old and had been built by a shah to please a special lady-friend who had complained she couldn't get a decent view of the countryside.

"I get it," I bad-joked. "Sort of a site for sore eyes."

Eleanor, still thinking of the sari cloth, wasn't amused. "That shah was my kind of guy," she said. "I guess in his day, fellows didn't mind doing little things for their girls."

"When you wanted to see the world," I grumbled, "I went to the Pan-Am office and shelled out for plane tickets. I didn't tell you to go up on the roof."

THREE HOURS later, we stopped at the Hotel Lauries in Agra for lunch and, while we were out on the veranda waiting for a table, an old fakir who called himself Bandu the Bird Man asked if we'd like to see his pet perform. And, so help me Houdini, for the next 15 minutes the old coot put on the most astonishing bird act I've seen in a thousand weeks of looking.

For openers, he tossed up a small silver coin, and one of the three little weaver birds perched on his shoulder caught it in mid-air and dropped it back in his hand. Then, on cue, the second bird flew to the far end of the veranda, plucked a cigarette off the table and flew it back into the fakir's mouth, while bird No. 3 winged off to another table and came back with a match. So it went and, for the last trick, two of the birds swung a piece of string while the center bird skipped rope.

"Remarkable," I said. "Nothing remarkable about it," said Eleanor. "Birds are like people—show them a little kindness, and they'll do anything for you."

"Sorry," I said, "but if you're still thinking of the sari cloth, I'm fresh out of birdseed."

Around mid-afternoon, Tiki put his foot on the brake and said, "There she is." And there she was—the Taj Mahal in person and perfection. Against the blue sky, it looked like embroidery in frozen milk, and I found myself remembering a guide-book quotation: "This is where the archi-

Elinor Williams'

Teen Tips

"I have a number of questions to ask you. I hope you won't mind," writes a high school freshman.

"1—How should I have started this letter—'Dear Miss Williams' or 'Dear Elinor'?"—Ans. It's customary to start letters to strangers with "Dear Miss Smith," but this is among friends, so a friendly "Dear Elinor" is OK.

"2—Is it all right for a girl of 12 to have movie dates?" Ans.—You probably won't like this, but the fact is that most girls and boys begin to have movie dates at about 15. At 13, however, you can enjoy school clubs, games, and social affairs and you can have fun with friends at home. Why not invite another girl and two boys to your home on Friday or Saturday evening? Play games and make candy or popcorn. Doing homework together is another good way to make and maintain friendships, both girls and boys.

"3—Is it correct to wear sweaters and skirts to parties?" Ans.—No. Even the nicest sweaters and skirts are not as dressy as dresses. Dresses are correct for most dates, parties, dances and other special doings. It's also more fun to wear something different from the usual school clothes at such times, and you'll look more attractive, too.

"4—I like two boys. Neither boy wants me to date the other. I have decided which one I like best, but do not know how to break it to the other one. What should I say?"—Ans. You don't have to say anything; it certainly wouldn't help your popularity rating to tell a boy you didn't like him or like somebody else better. Simply refuse dates with him. Be nice, polite and friendly—don't be rude—but avoid spending any time with him or giving him any attention beyond a casual "Hello."

For tips on easy exercises to improve your posture, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Elinor Williams in care of The Circleville Herald.

BE CAREFUL—THE LIFE YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR OWN

THESE ARE ACCIDENTS Before THEY HAPPEN

Turn through your newspaper and read the different ways people have met accidental death during the past 24 hours.

Nothing has happened to you. Your name is not there. But it doesn't mean it won't be there tomorrow.

Last year, accidents injured 10,300,000 persons and took 98,000 lives in the United States. YET, ON THE DAY BEFORE THOSE ACCIDENTS HAPPENED, THOSE PEOPLE WERE JUST AS SURE OF THEIR CONTINUED WELL-BEING AS YOU ARE THIS MINUTE.

Every time you walk down the stairs . . . every time you cross the street to the corner grocery . . . every time you smoke in bed . . . every time you replace a burned-out fuse, you're actually taking your life in your hands!

The ways in which accidents can lash out of nothingness to disfigure you . . . to make you a hopeless invalid . . . to snuff out your life, are too numerous for the mind to visualize. Accidents don't just happen—They are caused, usually by thoughtlessness or carelessness, or both. There's only one way to fight accidents. Think . . . before you act.

BE CAREFUL—THE LIFE YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR OWN!

Carefulness is a watchword on the Norfolk and Western. Last year, for the fourth time, the Norfolk and Western was awarded the Harriman Memorial Gold Medal for the best safety record among Class I railroads throughout the nation—the highest safety honor that can be bestowed upon any railroad.

On the railroad, it's a day-by-day, hour-by-hour, minute-by-minute job—involving relentless vigilance, a continuous educational program, and the expenditure of millions of dollars for modern, protective tools and equipment.

tect ends and the jeweler begins."

Inside the white marble cenotaph were two bejeweled coffins, and Tiki gave us a quick run-through of the story behind the structure.

"THE SHAHJAHAN," he said, "started building this mausoleum in 1630 for his favorite wife, and it took 20,000 workmen 18 years to complete it. In it, he placed his wife's coffin—the smaller one in the center—and then, not wishing to intrude on her privacy after his own death, he started a duplicate Taj in black marble on the other side of the Jumna River. But his son, afraid that this might bankrupt the country, locked him up in the Red Fort and, when Shah-jahan died, he was enshrined next to his wife. The wider tomb is his."

Eleanor was silent as we got back into the car, but I could tell something was percolating under her permanent.

"That's what I call a sport," she finally said. "After putting up the loveliest building in the world for his girl, he decides to do it all over again just because he doesn't want to crowd her."

Well, that did it. And, as I said in my getaway sentence, there's a hunk of gold sari cloth in my attic and it's for sale cheap—because, when we got back to New York, a dressmaker told my wife that the heavy fabric would make her look like a peasant-peasant instead of an El Morocco peasant.

Last night, Eleanor came home with a new hat festooned with what looked like asparagus and spark plugs and, when I found out how much it cost, I told her it wasn't worth it. Later, when I went to bed, there was a souvenir of India propped up against my pillow.

And so, as I was saying, with the bolt of sari cloth, at no extra charge goes a framed photo of the Taj Mahal.

Elinor Williams'

Teen Tips

"I have a number of questions to ask you. I hope you won't mind," writes a high school freshman.

"1—How should I have started this letter—'Dear Miss Williams' or 'Dear Elinor'?"—Ans. It's customary to start letters to strangers with "Dear Miss Smith," but this is among friends, so a friendly "Dear Elinor" is OK.

"2—Is it all right for a girl of 15 to have movie dates?" Ans. —You probably won't like this, but the fact is that most girls and boys begin to have movie dates at about 15. At 13, however, you can enjoy school clubs, games, and social affairs and you can have fun with friends at home. Why not invite another girl and two boys to your home on Friday or Saturday evening? Play games and make candy or popcorn. Doing homework together is another good way to make and maintain friendships, both girls and boys.

"3—Is it correct to wear sweaters and skirts to parties?" Ans.—No. Even the nicest sweaters and skirts are not as dressy as dresses. Dresses are correct for most dates, parties, dances and other special doings. It's also more fun to wear something different from the usual school clothes at such times, and you'll look more attractive, too.

"4—I like two boys. Neither boy wants me to date the other. I have decided which one I like best, but do not know how to break it to the other one. What should I say?"—Ans. You don't have to say anything; it certainly wouldn't help your popularity rating to tell a boy you didn't like him or like somebody else better. Simply refuse dates with him. Be nice, polite and friendly—don't be rude—but avoid spending any time with him or giving him any attention beyond a casual "Hello."

THESE ARE ACCIDENTS Before THEY HAPPEN

Turn through your newspaper and read the different ways people have met accidental death during the past 24 hours.

Nothing has happened to you. Your name is not there. But it doesn't mean it won't be there tomorrow.

Last year, accidents injured 10,300,000 persons and took 98,000 lives in the United States. YET, ON THE DAY BEFORE THOSE ACCIDENTS HAPPENED, THOSE PEOPLE WERE JUST AS SURE OF THEIR CONTINUED WELL-BEING AS YOU ARE THIS MINUTE.

Every time you walk down the stairs . . . every time you cross the street to the corner grocery . . . every time you smoke in bed . . . every time you replace a burned-out fuse, you're actually taking your life in your hands!

The ways in which accidents can lash out of nothingness to disfigure you . . . to make you a hopeless invalid . . . to snuff out your life, are too numerous for the mind to visualize. Accidents don't just happen—They are caused, usually by thoughtlessness or carelessness, or both. There's only one way to fight accidents. Think . . . before you act.

BE CAREFUL—THE LIFE YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR OWN!

Carefulness is a watchword on the Norfolk and Western. Last year, for the fourth time, the Norfolk and Western was awarded the Harriman Memorial Gold Medal for the best safety record among Class I railroads throughout the nation—the highest safety honor that can be bestowed upon any railroad.

On the railroad, it's a day-by-day, hour-by-hour, minute-by-minute job—involving relentless vigilance, a continuous educational program, and the expenditure of millions of dollars for modern, protective tools and equipment.

Is Winner Of

Lorms Trophy

Dwight Steele of Circleville won the Charley Lorms Memorial Day Handicap tournament at Pickaway Country Club Monday.

Steele shot an 86 on his rounds in the tournament, but held a 22-stroke handicap to give him a net low tally of 64 for the 18-hole match.

The Lorms trophy is a revolving cup which has been awarded every year since 1929. It was donated to the club by Charley Lorms, architect of the course and first club pro.

George Fickard and Virgil Cress tied for second place in the tournament, each with a net score of 69. Fickard shot a 90 for his rounds with a 21-stroke handicap; and Cress netted a 94 for his 18-holes with a 25-stroke handicap.

Low score for the day was shot by Art Marshall, who registered an 82. Marshall held only a 12-stroke handicap in the competition, however, giving him a net total of 70. A total of 24 members participated in the match.

THE SOX, of course, caught the headlines with those 10-2 and 4-3 decisions over the Athletics for reasons both plentiful and impelling. However, skipping details in favor of immediate results, these developments stand out:

The Red Sox, realizing on much of that 1946 potential for possibly the first time this season, hopped

Holland Wins Big '500' In Another Moore Racer

INDIANAPOLIS, May 31—They just can't beat the Lou Moore team at Indianapolis.

As a result, Bill Holland, the Reading, Pa., skating rink operator, will carry away the largest chunk of cash and awards tonight at the victory banquet for winners of the 33rd annual 500-mile Memorial Day race.

Holland's "take" is estimated at $35,600 of the $100,000 prize money.

For Holland, a 41-year-old father of three children, it was victory No. 1. But for Lou Moore—owner, designer, head mechanic and race manager of the three-car Blue Crown entry—it was Triumph No. 3 in as many years.

Holland played bridesmaid to his partner, Mauri Rose of South Bend, Ind., in 1947 and '48. But not so yesterday.

THE MUSTACHIOED 43-year-old Rose virtually ate Holland's dust for nearly four hours. A strap holding his magneto broke, the magneto dropped out and the South Bend driver found himself stranded on the 193rd lap, just 17-1/2 miles from the checkered flag. At the time he was riding in second place about 48 seconds behind Holland.

Junior Legion Team Tops Foe With 34-2 Score

Circleville American Legion Junior baseball team opened its season Monday in Ted Lewis Park with a lopsided 34-2 win over Centerburg.

The Centerburgers gave promise of making a ball game of it in the first inning when they tallied a brace of runs and shut out the locals.

After the second frame the game was all one-sided, however, the local Legion juniors blanking the visitors for the remainder of the encounter while picking up the 34 runs on 25 hits and 15 errors.

Centerfielder John Valentine of Circleville aided in setting off the fireworks in the fourth frame by blasting out a homerun into centerfield with the bases loaded.

The locals will meet Hillsboro Legion Junior baseballers at 5 p. m. on June 8 for their second encounter of the season. Box score of the Monday slaughter follows:

Hebron Outfit Hands Merchants 6-3 Defeat

Circleville Merchants baseball team was handed its second loss in four starts this season Sunday when it invaded at Hebron to absorb a 6-3 defeat.

The locals were nipped for a brace of tallies in the first inning of play and for a single in the second. Circleville was blanked until the fifth inning when three two-base hits and a single drove in two markers.

Hebron lengthened its lead to 5-2 in the seventh inning on two errors and two hits, and added the final tally in the eighth on two hits and a sacrifice.

Bob Moon highlighted Circleville batting efforts in the eighth frame by poling a homerun into centerfield.

The local squad is to hold evening practice sessions this week in Ted Lewis Park. Line score of the Sunday loss follows:

| Circleville | 000 | 020 | 010 | —3 | 7 | 6 |
|-------------|-----|-----|-----|----|---|---|
| Hebron      | 210 | 000 | 210 | —6 | 5 | 1 |

Moore brought in the No. 3 money winner, too, as George Connor of Los Angeles wheeled the "bay" Blue Crown to the finish line just behind Johnny Parsons of Van Nuys, Cal., who captured second place in the fastest "500" in history.

Holland averaged 121.377 miles an hour during the four hours, seven minutes and 15.19 seconds.

Parsons' average was 119.785 and Connor at 119.595 just missed eclipsing Rose's record set a year ago of 119.813.

Trailing Connor were Myron Fohr of Milwaukee; Jole Chitwood of Reading; Jimmy Jackson of Desert Hot Springs, Cal.; Johnny Mantz of Long Beach, Cal.; Paul Russo of Hammond, Ind.; Walt Brown of Massapequa, L. I., relief for Emil Andres of Chicago; Norman Houser of Indianapolis; Jim Rathmann of Los Angeles and Troy Ruttman of Ontario, Cal.

DUKE NALON set a torrid pace from the start and gunned into the lead on the first lap from his pole position in the 32-car field. He maintained it for 26 laps as the records fell by the wayside. But on the 27th lap there was a flash of fire and the big V-8 Novi crashed into the wall on the northeast turn. Nalon suffered third degree burns.

His partner in the original Novi job, Rex Mays, took over the lead for a short time only to be passed by Lee Wallard in the storied Maserati in which the late Ted Horn gained many honors and Wilbur Shaw won two speedway victories.

Mays' $75,000 Novi stalled on the treacherous northeast turn at 120 miles. Wallard's Maserati sprang a leak on the 55th lap and Holland roared into the lead to stay.

The only serious accident besides Mays' saw George Lynch of Detroit sideswipe an outside retaining wall on the second lap and slide into the infield. He suffered a broken ankle and abrasions.

Palmer, Snead In PGA Finals

RICHMOND, Va., May 31—Youthful Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., and balding Sammy Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., clash in this historic Confederate capitol today for the 31st championship of the Professional Golf Association.

Their scheduled 36-hole match over the fairways of the 6,077-yard Hermitage Country Club may be one of the closest in nearly a decade. Every comparison between the two golfers gives that indication.

Mel Parnell ... Red Sox star

SOUTHPAW ACE of the Boston Red Sox staff, Mel Parnell has notched his sixth victory of the year to top all American League hurlers in games won. Parnell has pitched seven complete games and lost but one; also has hit safely in every game. (International)

Rumors Increase Stan Musial To Be Sold To Ailing Pirates

NEW YORK, May 31—In spite of repeated denials, Stanley Musial, one of the greatest ball players in the game today, definitely is on the block and probably will wind up with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The 28-year-old slugger, outfielder and first baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, will go for an asking price of, roughly, $250,000 and three unidentified players.

Fred Saigh, president of the Cardinals, has persistently denied that Musial is headed for greener pastures—otherwise known as Pittsburgh's Forbes Field—but there are rumors in circulation that the new management of the Cardinals could use some folding money.

They are not drawing enough at the gate to pay postage on a letter of denial about their plight.

IT IS NO rumor but a positive fact that the club needs some talent to replace old wornout parts and help in a general rebuilding.

Musial might mean the pennant for Pittsburgh, Boston or Brooklyn, and the Pirates have the "bid" in on him because of what appears to be a peculiar tieup between them and the Cardinals.

There is close friendship of possibly a business nature between Bob Hannegan, who owns the Cardinals temporarily, and Frank McKinney, owner of the Pirates.

Musial hit .376 last year to wind up again as perennial batting champion and most valuable player, but still hasn't approached the salaries of such contemporaries as Bob Feller, Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio.

Musial gets a flat $50,000 for playing the game today and probably would welcome a change in scenery.

He is a native of Donora, Pa., about the distance of a three-base hit from Pittsburgh.

The Pirates can get up and get rolling with a little help and they most likely could find a place in the lineup for a fellow like Musial.

As for the Cardinals, they have been running down in the last couple of years and nothing has happened of late to help them.

Ashville Slaps Elks Softball Team By 11-5

Ashville softball team handed Elks softballers an 11-5 lacing Monday night in Ted Lewis Park.

The Ashvillers were blanked in the first inning of play while the Elks opened scoring with a single tally. However, the Ashville third and added four in the second frame to register a trio of runs, scored another run in the third and added four in the fourth while keeping the Elks scoreless.

Elks staged a four-run spree in the fifth inning to approach the lead by an 8-5 count, but Ashville sewed up the contest in the sixth inning by tallying another three runs.

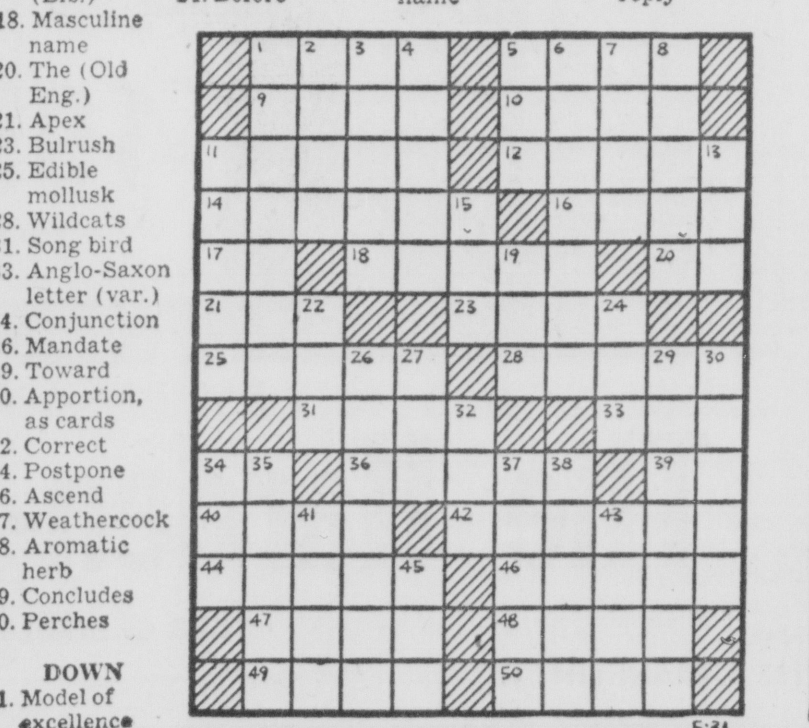

Schedule for the remainder of this week in the Circleville Night Softball league is Tinks vs. Hoovers Tuesday; Williamsport vs. Oilers Wednesday; and Boyers vs. VFW Thursday. All games are to begin at 8 p. m.

Line score of the Monday Ashville win follows:

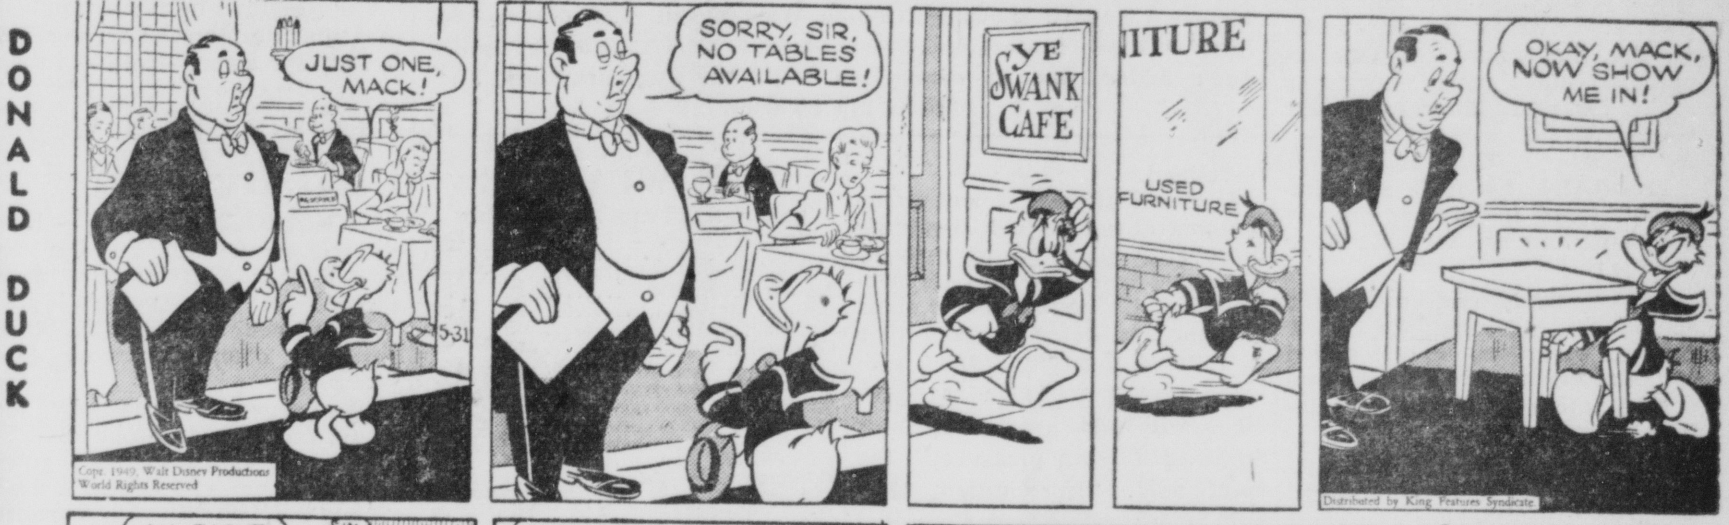

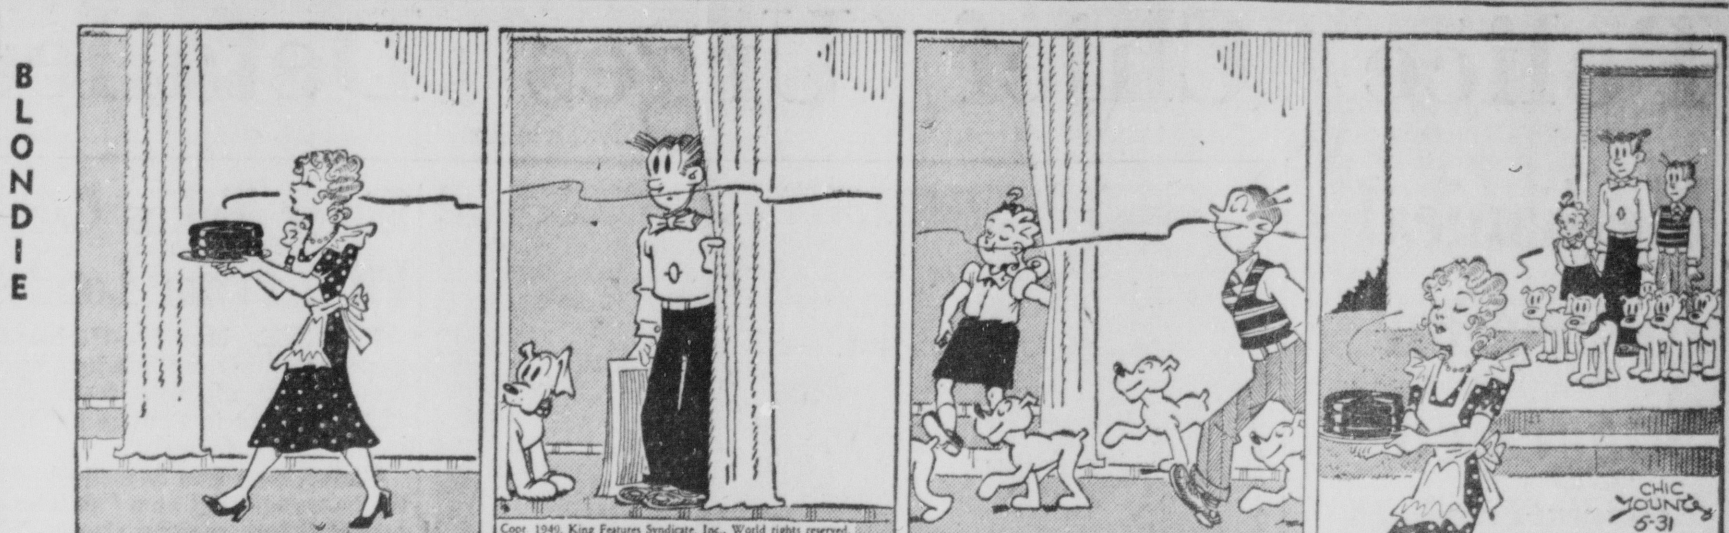

|          | R   | H   | E         |

| Ashville | 031 | 403 | 0—11 10 4 |

Hebron Outfit Hands Merchants 6-3 Defeat

Circleville Merchants baseball team was handed its second loss in four starts this season Sunday when it invaded at Hebron to absorb a 6-3 defeat.

The locals were nipped for a brace of tallies in the first inning of play and for a single in the second. Circleville was blanked until the fifth inning when three two-base hits and a single drove in two markers.

Hebron lengthened its lead to 5-2 in the seventh inning on two errors and two hits, and added the final tally in the eighth on two hits and a sacrifice.

Bob Moon highlighted Circleville batting efforts in the eighth frame by poling a homerun into centerfield.

The local squad is to hold evening practice sessions this week in Ted Lewis Park. Line score of the Sunday loss follows:

Rumors Increase Stan Musial To Be Sold To Ailing Pirates

NEW YORK, May 31—In spite of repeated denials, Stanley Musial, one of the greatest ball players in the game today, definitely is on the block and probably will wind up with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The 28-year-old slugger, outfielder and first baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, will go for an asking price of, roughly, $250,000 and three unidentified players.

Fred Saigh, president of the Cardinals, has persistently denied that Musial is headed for greener pastures—otherwise known as Pittsburgh's Forbes Field—but there are rumors in circulation that the new management of the Cardinals could use some folding money.

They are not drawing enough at the gate to pay postage on a letter of denial about their plight.

IT IS NO rumor but a positive fact that the club needs some talent to replace old wornout parts and help in a general rebuilding.

Musial might mean the pennant for Pittsburgh, Boston or Brooklyn, and the Pirates have the "bid" in on him because of what appears to be a peculiar tieup between them and the Cardinals.

There is close friendship of possibly a business nature between Bob Hannegan, who owns the Cardinals temporarily, and Frank McKinney, owner of the Pirates.

Musial hit .376 last year to wind up again as perennial batting champion and most valuable player, but still hasn't approached the salaries of such contemporaries as Bob Feller, Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio.

Musial gets a flat $50,000 for playing the game today and probably would welcome a change in scenery.

He is a native of Donora, Pa., about the distance of a three-base hit from Pittsburgh.

The Pirates can get up and get rolling with a little help and they most likely could find a place in the lineup for a fellow like Musial.

As for the Cardinals, they have been running down in the last couple of years and nothing has happened of late to help them.

Ashville Slaps Elks Softball Team By 11-5

Ashville softball team handed Elks softballers an 11-5 lacing Monday night in Ted Lewis Park.

The Ashvillers were blanked in the first inning of play while the Elks opened scoring with a single tally. However, the Ashville third and added four in the second frame to register a trio of runs, scored another run in the third and added four in the fourth while keeping the Elks scoreless.

Elks staged a four-run spree in the fifth inning to approach the lead by an 8-5 count, but Ashville sewed up the contest in the sixth inning by tallying another three runs.

Schedule for the remainder of this week in the Circleville Night Softball league is Tinks vs. Hoovers Tuesday; Williamsport vs. Oilers Wednesday; and Boyers vs. VFW Thursday. All games are to begin at 8 p. m.

Line score of the Monday Ashville win follows:

| R H E    |     |     |   |     |    |   |   |   |   |
|----------|-----|-----|---|-----|----|---|---|---|---|
| Ashville | 031 | 403 | 0 | —11 | 10 | 4 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Elks     | 100 | 040 | 0 | —5  | 4  | 5 | 0 | 0 | 0 |

Accident-Free Travel Is Cited

With the Summer touring season just now getting a good start, careful inspection, adjustment and lubrication of the family auto will assure trouble-free and accident-free travel in the weeks ahead.

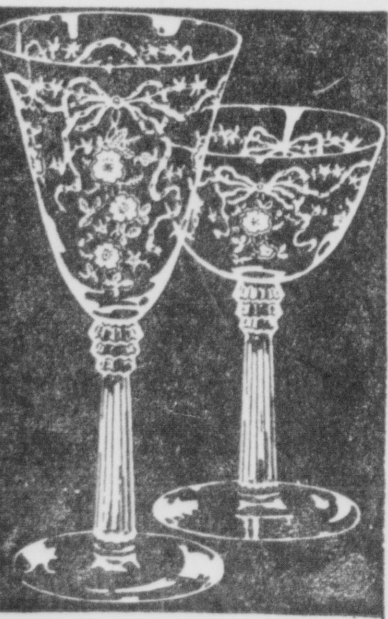

Thus, Circleville Police Chief William McCrady Tuesday advised local car-owners to plan for Summer driving.

"Memorial Day already has signaled the beginning of the Summer period in which cars take a beating," Chief McCrady said. "The age of most cars on the road today makes them potential casualties for the Summer. And if they are not trustworthy, they make for more accidents and more deaths on our roads."

MCCRADY LISTED nine important steps followed in preparing automobiles for Summer driving:

1. Underbody and chassis should be thoroughly steam-cleaned to prevent deterioration of metal and rubber parts due to accumulation of corrosive materials.
2. All hoses, clamps and connections should be inspected and replaced where necessary. Thermostats should be cleaned and checked for proper operation.
3. Fan belts should be inspected and adjusted.
4. Engine tune-up should include:
  - a. Distributor removal, points and condenser checked and replaced if necessary.
  - b. Ignition wiring and coil should be inspected and tightened.
  - c. Carburetor should be removed, thoroughly cleaned, and adjusted.
  - d. Fuel pump, sediment bowls and fuel lines should be cleaned.
  - e. Air cleaner should be removed, cleaned and re-oiled.
  - f. Oil filter should be cleaned, and element replaced.
  - g. Cylinder heads and manifold should be tightened.
5. A complete lubrication should be performed, oil changed and transmission and rear axle drained and refilled with Summer lubricants.
6. Exhaust system should be inspected and tightened while car is on hoist.
7. A thorough check of electrical system should be made with generator, starter and armatures being cleaned and brushes replaced if necessary. Voltage regulating system should be checked along with all electrical switches. Battery should be checked and re-charged if necessary. Battery terminals should be cleaned, greased and tightened. Headlights should be readjusted if necessary.
8. Brakes should be adjusted

Eisler Takes Czech Airliner, Flies From London To Prague

PRAGUE, May 31—Gerhardt Eisler, Communist leader who jumped bail and fled from the U. S., arrived in Prague by air from London today.

Eisler, who was described on the passenger list as a "stateless person," was met by Czechoslovak government officials at the airport and given treatment usually accorded important visitors.

No top-ranking Communist leaders were on hand, however.

Eisler said he made his decision to leave for Czechoslovakia suddenly.

He added that he flew because he understood that British protection extended only to British territorial waters and for that reason he did not wish to risk a voyage by sea.

Eisler said he chose a Czechoslovak plane because he thought that aircraft of any other nationality might put down in the U. S. zone of Germany.

The German-born Communist said that he plans to remain in Prague for a short time and then go on to Leipzig in the Soviet zone of Germany to take up a post as professor of social sciences.

QUESTIONED about the university post, Eisler merely said: "A communist professor has many sidelines."

Eisler protested the detention of his wife on Ellis Island by U. S. authorities. He said: "They are only holding her because she is my wife."

Eisler's departure was completely unexpected. He had been scheduled to address a rally in his behalf tonight in London.

The bespectacled, slight Eisler appeared in good humor when he arrived at Northolt airfield to board a plane of the Czech Airlines. He was accompanied by three officials of the Czechoslovakian embassy.

His arrival at the airport and departure for Prague were cloaked in the deepest secrecy although he was free to leave

Britain at any time. He received a certificate of identity and a permit to leave the country from the British government yesterday.

The car in which he arrived was closed. Eisler did not get out until a few moments before the plane was to take off. He suddenly emerged and dashed for it.

His ticket bore no name, his baggage was unlabelled and his name was not included on the passenger list.
